Williams to seek Hutchison Senate seat

From Staff Reports

Although Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison has not officially announced her plan to run for governor's house. However, clearly she has made her plans known as people are coming out of the woodwork to announce they are running for her U.S. Senate position. They include Railroad Commissioner, Michael Williams, the only African American statewide elected official in Texas announced he is running for Sen. Hutchison's seat.

After the 2008 Presidential election and other races around the country the Republican Party are looking to re-define their party to feel more welcoming to minorities. This could work to Mr. Williams' advantage.

DCHHS, Reliant Energy Announce Major Funding

From Staff Reports

Dallas County Health and Human Services (DCHHS) and Reliant Energy today announced a $50,000 commitment in new funding for energy efficiency improvements for low-income homes through the DCHHS Weatherization Assistance Program. The new initiative kicked-off earlier today with $5,000 in energy efficiency improvements being made to the first recipient's home.

Through the partnership with Reliant Energy, DCHHS will weatherize the homes of 10 Reliant Energy customers who either qualify for assistance from the county or were former recipients of the Low-Income

Discount Assistance

Program, also known as "LITE-UP." Each customer will receive $5,000 in energy efficiency improvements, courtesy of Reliant Energy, including:

COMMENTARY

Jesus Christ vs. Santa Claus

By Michael G. Shinn
NNPA Columnist

The Friday after Thanksgiving is referred to as "Black Friday" by many in the financial industry. This is the day when American shoppers rise early, flock to the stores and unleash a month of buying that is without precedent any other time of the year. It is called "Black Friday" because the financial bottom line for many retailers turns from red (loss) to black (profit).

The Christmas Season has become a consumer spectacular that is seemingly crucial to our nation's economy. Is that why Santa Claus, in many instances, is more revered than Jesus Christ?

Santa Claus' Gospel is a Lie

The Gospel of Santa Claus is a lie that I, like most parents, have

Karl Reid

UNCF—the United Negro College Fund—the nation's oldest and most successful minority higher education assistance organization, recently announced the appointment of Karl Reid, a national leader in minority science and technology education, as Senior Vice President of Academic Programs and Strategic Initiatives. He will be responsible for implementing strategies to develop and fund educational, research and capacity-building programs for UNCF's 39 member historically black colleges and universities (HBCUs). Additionally, he will lead initiatives for the scholarship and internship programs for the 8,000 students who received UNCF scholarships to 900 colleges and universities around the country. Dr. Reid arrives at UNCF from MIT after serving as Associate Dean of Undergraduate Education (DUE), Assistant to the Chancellor for Diversity and Director of the Office of Minority Education, where he was responsible for the academic performance and leadership development of over 800 minority students. He also lectured on race, identity, and achievement.

"Karl Reid brings to UNCF an unequalled record of helping minority students succeed in college," said Michael L. Lomax, Ph.D., UNCF president and CEO. "The economy needs college graduates, especially graduates with degrees in fields like science and technology, and Dr. Reid knows what it takes to provide students with the preparation they need to compete for those jobs."

Prior to his previous appointments, Dr. Reid served as the Executive Director of Engineering Outreach Programs for MIT's School of Engineering, where he directed the nationally recognized Minority Introduction to Engineering and Science (MITES) Program, a residential summer program for talented high school seniors.

During his tenure at MIT, he also founded the Saturday Engineering Enrichment and Discovery (SEED) Academy, and the Science Technology Engineering and Math (STEM) Program, both of which are year-round academic and mentoring programs for local high school and middle school students. Additionally, he served on the School of Engineering's Committee on Undergraduate Engineering Practice and staffed the Presidential Task Force on Minority Student Achievement.

Dr. Reid began his career in the computer industry in product management, marketing, sales and consulting for several companies, including six years with IBM. Dr. Reid earned both his Bachelor and Master of Science degrees in Materials Science and Engineering from MIT and his Doctorate of Education from the Harvard Graduate School of Education. From his dissertation research on African American male achievement in college, he conducted workshops and seminars to high school and university faculty audiences.

Eddie Glaude, Jr.

A prolific author and distinguished scholar, Eddie Glaude, Jr. was a key participant in the groundbreaking essay collection Covenant With Black America (2006), which was described as a national plan of action on the social and economic disparities African-Americans face, ranging from education to healthcare. Covenant With Black America became the first book by a black-owned publisher to become the number-one non-fiction paperback on the New York Times Bestseller List. Glaude continues to discuss the book around the country with editor Tavis Smiley, including as a regular guest on Smiley's Public Radio International talk show.

Eddie Glaude, Jr. is the William S. Tod Professor of Religion and African American Studies at Princeton, and his research interests include American pragmatism, specifically the work of John Dewey, as well as African American religious history and its place in American public life.

Among his works, Glaude authored Exodus! Religion, Race, and Nation in Early 19th Century Black America, and edited, Is it Nation Time? Contemporary Essays on Black Power and Black Nationalism. With fellow Princeton professor Cornel West, he co-edited African-American Religious Thought: An Anthology, which received the 2002 Modern Language Association William Sanders Scarborough Prize for scholarly excellence.

Is It Nation Time? gathers essays on the Black Power movement and its legacy by renowned thinkers who deal rigorously and unsentimentally with such issues as the commodification of blackness, the piety of cultural recovery, and class tensions within the movement. For anyone who wants to understand the roots of the complex political and cultural desires of contemporary black America, this will be an essential collection.

Born on the coast of Mississippi, in a small town called Moss Point, Glaude brings to his scholarship and public service a sense of passion and vocation shaped by the tradition of African American struggle. As a graduate of Morehouse College, he was inspired by the courage and devotion of Martin Luther King, Jr., the institution's most famous graduate. According to Dr. Cornel West, "Eddie Glaude is the towering intellectual of his generation. There is simply no else like him emerging on the intellectual scene!"

EARTH TALK

From the Editors of E/The Environmental Magazine

Dear EarthTalk: How can the new Obama administration and/or Congress undo the many anti-environmental actions the Bush administration undertook over the last eight years, including the obstruction of Bill Clinton's landmark "roadless rule" legislation?

-- Ann Lyman, Lake Tahoe, CA

The Bush administration has certainly been no friend to the environment. Besides working for eight years to overturn the Clinton administration's "Roadless Rule" that prevented road building (and the logging that usually follows) on 58.5 million acres of national forests, the Bush White House has opened up 45 million additional acres of public land across the American West to oil and gas drilling during its tenure.

Right now Bush is pushing to open up thousands more acres in sensitive areas around three national parks in Utah to more oil and gas extraction. According to The New York Times, these new oil and gas "leases" (the government leases drilling rights on public land to private companies) will be auctioned off on December 19, 2008, the last day the White House may carry out such transactions before leaving office.

Obama transition team insiders have already hinted that they will work to overturn the Utah oil and gas leases once they are in power. Obama's trump card might be the fact that Bush failed to give his own National Park Service (NPS) sufficient opportunity to comment on the proposed leases before forcing them through. Green leaders hope that Obama can at least re-set the decision-making process to give the NPS and other interested parties time to voice their concerns before the oil rigs and gas pipelines move in. Green leaders also hope that, beyond stopping the Utah leases, Obama will curtail the number of leases sold altogether, in part by forcing extraction firms to develop sites they already have rights to before leasing more acreage. Oil companies have already leased 68 million acres of lands they have yet to access.

On the Roadless Rule, itself an 11th-hour executive order by Bill Clinton that has been mired in the courts since Bush tried to overturn it in 2001, Obama promised during the campaign that he would work with Congress to codify it as the law of the land. Luckily for greens, the back-and-forth on the issue over the past eight years has meant that only seven miles of new roads—yielding access to just 500 acres of timber—have been cut on lands slated for protection under the Roadless Rule during Bush's tenure.

Obama also has his work cut out on a number of other environmental initiatives ignored or opposed by the Bush White House. Chief among them is taking action on global warming. If one can believe the campaign rhetoric, Obama will work to get the U.S. on track to reduce greenhouse gas emissions 80 percent by 2050 through a number of initiatives. Jason Grumet, the Obama campaign's lead energy and environment advisor, has indicated that the president-elect plans to move quickly on getting climate change legislation through in 2009 and working to make the U.S. a leader on mitigating global warming.

Another way Obama can win green friends is to undo a Bush proposal, slated to take effect in December, to cut wildlife experts out of decisions affecting plants and animals protected under the Endangered Species Act. Bush has faced sharp criticism for disregarding or ignoring the input of scientists on many issues. Obama seems likely to want to re-assert the importance of science in policy decision-making.

While you ponder that thought we would like to announce that Minority Opportunity News, Inc., formerly a Dallas based renaissance community tabloid, founded in 1991, has relocated to Plano, Texas, and changed our name to MON-The Gazette. In addition to moving our offices to Plano, our editorial coverage has also shifted to encompass Dallas' Northern Corridor. The Northern Corridor is clearly the fastest growing region in Texas, if not in America. MON-The Gazette believes that the engine to continue this growth is the airport expansion in McKinney, which is the largest and most visible of many area opportunities. As always, and true to tradition, MON-The Gazette will be there carving a world of opportunity for those seeking to provide quality services. Should you dare to expand your quest for economic parity outside the southern region or just want to know what is going on up north—helped to perpetuate. We have been aided, co-opted and brainwashed by the masters of imagery on Madison Avenue, Wall Street and Disneyland.

Bing Crosby, Nat King Cole and even Luther Vandross have helped to paint images of a White Christmas, red nosed reindeers and happy shoppers gleefully looking for that last minute gift. The gospel according to Santa Claus is about money - big money - and how big corporations can coax that money out of our pockets by turning "wants" into perceived "needs".

I have a couple of questions for you. Of the gifts you received or gave this Christmas, how many were really needed by you or the person you gave them to? What did you give to the proverbial person "who has everything?" If they have everything, why did you even give them a gift?

During the Christmas Season, too many people buy things they don't need, with money they don't have, run up debts that they can't afford and all this for the wrong reasons.

The Holiday Season is supposed to be a religious observance, but that fact has been lost in the omnipresent marketing hype. The Christmas Spirit in modern day America is all about selling products! The social and psychological pressure to overspend is at its zenith during this time of the year.

"Advent is the four weeks preceding Christmas. It is a time of preparation for the celebration of the birth of Jesus Christ. Each Sunday we light a candle symbolizing the four gifts that Christ brought to us--- Love, Hope, Peace and Joy," states Reverend Paul H. Sadler, Sr., Pastor of Mt. Zion Congregational Church in Cleveland, Ohio. "Santa Claus represents materialism. Material objects, fame, fortune and power are fleeting. We have to invest and believe in the Holy Spirit. Santa Claus can't take you to Heaven. Jesus Christ is the Truth and the Light."

34 Nigerian Babies Dead in Teething Syrup Tragedy

NNPA

A locally-made teething syrup has taken the lives of 34 infants, according to local reports from the Nigerian city of Zaria.

"My Pikin", was contaminated with diethylene glycol, a taste sweetener, linked to kidney failure.

Nigeria's National Agency for Food and Drugs Administration and Control said it was making every effort to address the problem, including importing an antidote and pulling the tainted medicine off the shelves.

But the government agency was itself drawn into the tragedy by charges that it failed to sufficiently test the product it had already approved for use.

Meanwhile, the detained chairman of Barewa Pharmaceuticals, Kola Okunlola, reportedly confessed to knowledge of a product purchased in a plastic container from a street merchant that was added to My Pikin.

Diethyleneglycol has been linked to poisonings of children in South Africa, India, Argentina, Haiti and in the U.S. under conditions of poor or infrequent testing.

Keeping pets safe during the Holidays

From staff reports

The holidays are filled with special decorations, seasonal plants and festive food. But these traditional symbols of the season can be potentially dangerous to pets.

"A Christmas tree can seem like a giant Jungle Gym for active cats and dogs," said Jonnie England, Director of Animal Advocacy for the Metroplex Animal Coalition (MAC). "Climbing cats and dogs with wagging tails can easily knock over a tree, so it's important to anchor it securely and watch pets closely when they're around the tree."

Pets should also be prevented from drinking from the tree stand if preservative chemicals—which can be poisonous—have been added to the water. "In addition," England added, "pine needles can be toxic if eaten by your pet, so it's important to clean them up as they drop off the tree."

Holiday ornaments are another possible risk for pets. "Cats, especially, like to bat at dangling ornaments," said England. "If broken, tiny pieces of glass and the metal hooks are easily stepped on or swallowed." Breakable and heirloom ornaments should be on the higher branches to protect both the decorations and curious cats.

Tinsel, ribbons and garlands are also holiday hazards for pets. If ingested, they can become lodged in the intestines, cause obstructions and lead to surgery or death, said England.

Bright, twinkling lights and extension cords are other potential problems. They should be safely secured or covered to discourage chewing, which can lead to electric shock or even electrocution. "Better yet," said England, "purchase pet-proof extension cords, or spray with deterrent products such as Bitter Apple or Chew Stop."

Pets should also be kept away from seasonal holiday plants, including poinsettias, mistletoe and holly. If eaten, they can cause stomach upset, serious illness and—in the case of mistletoe berries—fatal heart problems.

The festive and fattening foods that are traditional at this time of year can be health hazards for dogs and cats. "No matter how much they beg or look up with those big, sad eyes, pets should not be given 'people food,'" said England. "Rich, fatty foods, such as turkey skins or gravy, can cause painful pancreatitis, which is serious and can lead to hospitalization."

Turkey and chicken bones can tear or obstruct an animal's intestinal tract or get stuck in the throat. "Also watch the string that ties up the turkey or roast, as well as the little red 'pop-up' thermometers," said England. "Dogs and cats often eat these tasty treats, which can cause intestinal blockage." Another food risk is onions, which are toxic and can destroy a dog's red blood cells, leading to anemia.

Chocolate, especially baking chocolate, is very dangerous to dogs and can even lead to death. It affects the nervous system and can damage the urinary system and heart muscle. It also contains theobromine, which can be especially harmful to dogs if ingested in large quantities.

"If you take some preventive measures, watch your pets around the decorations, and resist giving them treats from the table, you can help ensure that you and your pets will have a happy and healthy holiday season," said England.

Genesis Women's Shelter to Benefit from Cooking for Domestic Peace

Chef Tonné Bobsaith, Dallas' own celebrated Executive Sous Chef and CEO of Chef Tonné announced her holiday campaign against domestic violence called Cooking for Domestic Peace. For every event or party scheduled through Chef Tonné, a donation will be made to Genesis Women's Shelter, a non-profit crisis intervention organization that helps Dallas women and their children.

"We are ecstatic to partner with Chef Tonné in her holiday campaign to help bring a sense of peace and calm to homes that have been shattered by domestic violence," said Lara Gaither, Director of Outreach and Community Development, Genesis Women's Shelter. "It is important for people to not forget this holiday season, the Dallas women and children that need our help."

Chef Tonné's Cooking for Domestic Peace holiday campaign will donate 15% of every scheduled Corporate Event, Private Party, Social Event, Holiday Party to Genesis Women's Shelter. The campaign drive starts immediately and runs through the first week in January. Chef Tonné will present Genesis Women's Shelter in January, with a check for the full sum collected during the campaign.

Chef Tonné described how she deeply believes in Genesis Women's Shelter and the services they provide, "I have worked with Genesis on a variety of projects and I am intimately aware of the great work they do. I wanted to do something special for them this holiday season."

UNCF Praises Secretary of Education appointee

From staff reports

UNCF is delighted that President-elect Obama has decided to nominate Arne Duncan, Chief Executive Officer of Chicago Public Schools, to be Secretary of Education. Duncan will bring to the Department of Education a background that combines experience as the successful leader of one of our largest big-city school systems with an unflagging commitment to educational reform that will stand him in good stead as he tackles a national education policy badly in need of being overhauled.

Duncan's direct responsibility in Chicago has been for a pre-school-through-high-school system. But he has made preparing Chicago students to attend college one of his top priorities. The percentage of Chicago high school graduates enrolling in college has increased more than 13 percent under his

We hope that as Secretary, he will work to make sure that all students receive a rigorous, accessible and affordable education.

UNCF supports 60,000 students at 900 colleges around the country. UNCF administers 400 scholarship programs and supports 39 historically black colleges and universities.

ACT Seeks Teachers for Summer Program

From staff reports

ACT is looking for outstanding high school teachers to participate in a summer program designed to help develop and evaluate ACT's newest educational program – QualityCore.

ACT's Visiting Teacher Program seeks eligible teachers from high school in the areas of science, mathematics, social studies, and language arts. Minority teachers are especially encouraged to apply.

Started in 1995, the Visiting Teacher Program brings teachers from across the United States to ACT's national headquarters in Iowa City, Iowa. The program gives practicing teachers an opportunity to use their classroom expertise and experience to review, evaluate, and develop English, math, science and social studies teacher resources and instructional support materials.

Participating teachers will work collaboratively with ACT staff to gain practical knowledge and skills in educational measurement that will help them in their own classrooms and provide them with hands-on experience in developing and reviewing multiple-choice and constructed-response test items.

The five-week program begins June 22 and continues through July 24, 2009. Participants receive a stipend of $5,500 and the cost of round-trip transportation. ACT secures and partially subsidizes housing for the visiting teachers.

To apply, teachers must submit a completed application available on ACT's website: www.act.org/path/secondary/visit.html.

Hill Harper Inspires Students To Stay Focused

From staff reports

McDonald's recently unveiled a new, in-school achievement program, McDonald's All American Achievers, an opportunity for teachers nationwide to celebrate their top-performing students. With the support of "CSI: NY" star Hill Harper, McDonald's will launch All American Achievers as an interactive program that not only motivates 7th and 8th graders to excel academically, but also encourages character development and community service.

Teachers can find entry materials at www.365Black.com. Students are eligible to become an All American Achiever through submitting an expository essay, written by the student and submitted by his or her teacher, answering questions about the student's academic accomplishments, extracurricular activities and community citizenship. Teachers score and submit the classroom's essays for consideration. A panel of judges, including educators and actor and longtime education activist Harper, will select the Grand Prize winners from the highest scoring essays submitted.

"It's great to see McDonald's is leading the path and shaping the next generation of leaders. We need to keep our students encouraged and motivated now so they can be prepared for the future," Harper said.

Dallas Black Dance Theater, A&E Legend Ann Williams honored

From staff reports

Dallas Arts & Entertainment Pioneer, Ann M. Williams, the founder and artistic director of the Dallas Black Dance Theatre wins the 2008 BCAG Gala award presented at the 3rd Annual Business Community Awards Gala hosted by the DFW Chapters of the National Association of Black Accountants and the National Black MBA Association. Williams was the winner out of four finalists nominated for their consistent contribution to the educational, professional and cultural growth of their community.

Specifically, Williams was honored for her establishment and operation of the Dallas Black Dance Theatre for more than 32 years. The theatre has grown from a community-based organization and a professional organization to a full scale professional dance company that tours nationally and internationally. It has an contemporary modern dance company, known as the ensemble that consists of 12 professional dancers performing a mixed repertoire of modern, jazz, ethnic and spiritual works by nationally and internationally known choreographers. The mission of the theatre is to create and produce contemporary modern dance at its highest level of artistic excellence through performances and educational programs that bridge cultures and reach diverse communities.

Williams' vision to educate, promote diversity and to raise cultural awareness in the DFW community and abroad along with her many personal accomplishments embodied the criteria of the recipient of the 2008 BCAG Award. Regarding her selection as an award recipient, Williams simply stated, "I am honored to be considered for such an award. To see all the young people that were also finalists, I know where their journey is going and it is good to be recognized along the way. I wish them all the success in their journey and just keep going."

The Business Community Awards Gala is an annual professional and community-oriented event that aims to highlight outstanding professional and community leaders of the DFW metroplex while generating funds to support the scholarship programs of the host non-profit organizations, the National Association of Black Accountants and the National Black MBA

Association. Over 200 people attended the cocktail-styled evening held at the Omni Hotel at Park West. The event sponsors included Sterling Bank, BDO Seidman, LLP, McKesson, JCPenney, Ernst & Young, LLP, Raytheon, University of Dallas School of Management, PriceWaterhouseCoopers, LLP, Nationwide, and Deloitte, LLP.

The complete list of award finalists included: Vonja Fleet (founder and program director) and Peter Burns (program director) of The National Pre-Law Institute for Youth, Tony Reed, CPA, PMP (co-founder and executive director) of The National Black Marathoners Association, and Alicia D. Sanders, CPA (founder and CEO) of Amenity Financial Services.

President Michael Sorrell, of Paul Quinn College, served as the Master of Ceremonies for the evening and Tiffany Blue kept the evening ablaze with jazz and R&B serenades throughout the reception and awards ceremony.

Local Author hosts Holiday Break Writing Contest for Teens

From staff reports

While many teens will spend the holiday break vegetating, bestselling fiction author and educator Michelle Stimpson hopes that some will use the time more constructively. Stimpson will oversee the "Holiday Break Short Story Writing Contest", open from December 20, 2008 – January 17, 2009. "We're searching for the best teen writers across the country," Stimpson challenges. "No excuses – school's out. Just write!"

The contest, sponsored by independent educational publisher Right Track Academic Support Services, LLC, is open to teens ages 13–19 enrolled in grades 9–12. Entries must be original, unpublished works between 1250 – 1500 words. Winners will receive Visa® gift cards and have their entries posted online at www.wegottaread.com alongside other free resources for secondary teachers.

The monetary prize demonstrates the contest organizer's belief that students should be exposed to a variety of well-paying career options. Stimpson encourages teens from her own experience as an

Proud To Be An Active Partner In The Community

Garland's District 2 citizens will have a convenience store to meet basic needs.

A Renewal

By Camille Davis
North Dallas Gazette

Residents of Garland's District 2 will soon have access to a new QuikTrip convenience store on the corner of Main and First streets, an amenity long over due, according to their former Councilwoman, Terri Dunn.

"My goal as a council person was to work to bring back those services that the residents said they needed," said Dunn.

District 2 is what Ms. Dunn affirmingly refers to as a "vintage" area of Garland.

"I call this area vintage-not old or bad," she said.

Garland's First Quarter, the area where First and Main streets are located, once was the site of a thriving business community that provided groceries, gas, and professional services to its' citizens. Now the area is a mecca for tire and automotive shops- businesses that Dunn believes are important to the area but not enough to provide all of the needs of those living near by. Dunn has lived in her current home in the District 2 area for over 30 years and ran for the City Council seat that her husband, Jimmie, was vacating in 2004. She ran on a platform of community renewal and revitalization of what she calls, "quality of life services."

"The inner city should be provided for," Dunn said. "This is my home, and these are my neighbors."

Dunn said she recommended the building of a Quik Trip convenience store to her fellow council members because of its' competitive prices, cleanliness and quality food product. She said that its' prices and selection are similar to some of the better grocery stores in Garland. She wanted residents to have a place to purchase gasoline and food without leaving their neighborhood. Dunn said that it was unfair for District 2 citizens to travel inordinate distances in order to purchase basic services. According to Dunn, "District 2 citizens were paying more for their needs," because of the distance they had to travel in order to make purchases.

According to QuikTrip.com all store locations are open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. The website also boasts of "bright lighting both inside and out, as well as video cameras and raised checkout for better visibility." Perhaps most unique is the store's pledge not to carry "adult magazines."

QuikTrip will also benefit District 2 by delivering jobs. Although the convenience store site is still under development, signs are posted advertising positions for employment. At a time when numerous Americans are losing jobs, any organization that advertises work is a positive change from the national trend.

QuikTrip was voted one of Fortune Magazines Top 100 Best Companies to work for in 2008, and one of its' local stores in Plano received a score of A- from the Better Business Bureau.

According to Dunn, a member of the NAACP Executive Committee, many of the residents of District 2 are elderly and/or minorities. She said that many District 2 residents are responsible for building Garland and should not be forgotten solely because the city has new development.

"You don't have to be brand new to have something clean and have a good quality of life," she said.

Terri Dunn also refers to the citizens of the district as "residents" instead of "constituents" or something else, less personal.

"{The word} resident is more of a heart thing," she explains. "It has more of a meaning of people with a vested interest in a city."

If this is so, then Dunn is a resident of District 2. She expresses a "love for the city and the home" in which she and her husband former Councilman Jimmie Dunn live.

Former Councilman Jimmie Dunn believes that the opening of the QuikTrip will be the beginning of other positive changes in the area.

"I'm quite sure that this will be the catalyst that puts the long needed revitalization into a high gear," he said.

During his two terms in office, Councilman

Jimmie Dunn also had similar goals of community refurbishment for District 2.

"Many of the buildings[ in the district] had outside storage with high wire fences, and razor wire and barbed wire on top," he said.

"We (he and other council members) passed an ordinance prohibiting razor wire and barbed wire."

Both Dunns hope that the Quik Trip convenience store is the beginning of many new businesses in the First Quarter and in District 2. They vow to continue working for the district, whether or not they hold public office.

"Things come to those who wait, as long as they work really hard while they wait," Mr. Dunn said.

"Mrs. Dunn adds, "It's about the people, and I am one of them."

What in the world is a donkey doing in Horse Heaven? This is the question on everyone's mind in Teatro delle Muse's current offering, "Donkey in Horse Heaven," by Rick A. Elina, theatre critic for the North Dallas Gazette. An unassuming donkey named Horace (Hope Henderson) finds himself in not just any old corner of Horse Heaven, but in the "seventh level," among the creme de la creme of the upper echelons of horsehood. The famed and lauded horses who inhabit this realm are a veritable "who's who" of horses. Of course you can imagine their reaction when a lowly donkey enters their "hallowed hall." We learn of the great contributions to history of such Horse-Heaven luminaries as Nelson (Mardi Robinson), Traveller (Shelby-Marie Sloan), Man O'War (Jay Reavis), and and of course, the "spirited" Blackjack (Rachel Southworth). Though their names may not be household, or horsehold, now, but you will remember these noble creatures long after the curtain falls. As the story unfolds, each of these respected and honored equines one by one recounts his exploits and valor. This only serves to raise even more doubt as to why a donkey would be in Horse Heaven. And the most doubtful of all is poor Horace. The petit Ms. Henderson plays well against the older actors. This contrast in stature with the other horses fuels the underlying theme of self-doubt and heaven-worthy qualifications. But in the end, kindness and acceptance trumps all. In fact each cast member holds their own, ably portraying a selection of horses (and donkey) with a wide range of personalities and styles. Cam Wenrich as Trigger adds comedic moments that work well as a foil to the more serious hors-es. As scenic designer, Sarah VC Henderson creatively explores the idea of just what might constitute heaven for a horse, giving the angelic equines plenty of space to do what they love: eat, roll in the dirt, and play games. As director, Henderson has struck just the right balance of humor, rivalry, and tenderness with this carefully crafted script. The lighting design, by Jason Fehrm, superbly illuminated the celestial realm. Making this production all the more poignant during this holiday season is the fact that it is a benefit for the young Brittany Stene, an actress, singer and dancer who has been active with Teatro delle Muse from its first production. Brittany has been battling cancer this year, and all proceeds from this show and an accompanying silent auction will go toward her medical fund.

The opening performance audience enjoyed an additional treat in a warm-up turn on piano and vocals by Louisiana musician Talmadge Wells. This opening act was hard to follow, but the talented cast was up to the challenge and kept everyone rapt to the final revelatory moments. Donkey in Horse Heaven continues through December 21. Tickets may be purchased online at www.TeatrodelleMuse.us or by calling 1-866-811-4111.

"Your Sports Station" The New 105.3 The Fan Launches Today

From staff reports

Your Sports Station, 105.3 The Fan hit the Dallas/Ft. Worth area today at 3:00 CST on-air on KLLI-FM and online at www.1053thefan.com. The station features a variety of sports talk with an emphasis on hearing from the fan's point of view.

The Fan is anchored by the popular Jagger Show from 6:00-10:30AM, followed by market veteran Kevin Scott and former NFL and Texas A&M football player Greg Hill from 10:30AM-3:00PM. KLLI's midday program, The Ben and Skin Show, moves to afternoons (3:00-7:00PM) with The Fan rounding out the day's lineup with Pete Stein and Mike Rodriguez from 7:00-10:00PM. FOX Sports programming will air beginning at 10:00PM.

David Henry, Senior Vice President and General Manager for the new 105.3 The Fan commented, "An area as big as Dallas/Fort Worth deserves a station just as big devoted to nothing but sports. With the launch of The Fan, more listeners than ever before in the market will have access to programming geared specifically to the local sports fan."

Added Gavin Spittle, who will serve as Program Director of the station, "A successful sports radio station is built on the dialogue its hosts have with the listeners. And there's no question that The Fan will spark some great sports debates. Dallas/Fort Worth residents are passionate about sports – now they have a bigger and better venue to share their opinion." "Our tagline is "Your Sports Station" because this station is created for the fan to express their passion.

The Fan will continue to serve as the flagship station of Texas Motor Speedway and the broadcast home of NASCAR Sprint Cup Series races. The station also will air the NFL playoffs and 2009 Super Bowl, as well as this year's Alamo Bowl from San Antonio on Monday, Dec. 29, the Holiday Bowl on Tuesday December 30th, the Sugar Bowl on Friday January 2nd and the BCS National Championship featuring Oklahoma vs. Florida on Thursday, January 8, 2009.

Obama Economic Plan aims for 2.5M New Jobs by 2011

By Will Lester
NNPA

President-elect Barack Obama has promoted an economic plan that would provide 2.5 million jobs by rebuilding roads and bridges and modernizing schools while developing alternative energy sources and more efficient cars.

"These aren't just steps to pull ourselves out of this immediate crisis. These are the long-term investments in our economic future that have been ignored for far too long," Obama said in the weekly Democratic radio address Nov. 22.

The goal is to get the plan quickly through Congress, with help from both parties, after Obama takes office Jan. 20. The plan, which envisions those new jobs by January 2011, is "big enough to meet the challenges we face," he said. The president-elect said he has asked his economic advisers to flesh out the recovery plan - one "big enough to meet the challenges we face. ... We'll be working out the details in the weeks ahead, but it will be a two-year, nationwide effort to jump-start job creation in America and lay the foundation for a strong and growing economy."

Obama's radio address talked about the goal of job creation and said his economic plan "will mean 2.5 million more jobs by January of 2011." The Obama Web site said his plan will "save or create" 2.5 million jobs. Obama spokesman Robert Gibbs confirmed that the plan "will save and create" the 2.5 million jobs.

The African-American community has been the hardest hit with joblessness with consistently twice the number of unemployed as the White community and consistently in double digits. Last month, the African-American jobless rate was 10.6 percent.

In his address, Obama

noted the growing evidence the country is "facing an economic crisis of historic proportions" and said he was pleased Congress passed an extension of unemployment benefits this past week. But, he added, "We must do more to put people back to work and get our economy moving again."

Nonetheless, he said, "There are no quick or easy fixes to this crisis, which has been many years in the making, and it's likely to get worse before it gets better."

It will take support from Democrats and Republicans to pass the economic plan, Obama said. "I'll be welcome to ideas and suggestions from both sides of the aisle," he said. "But what is not negotiable is the need for immediate action."

People "are lying awake at night wondering if next week's paycheck will cover next month's bills," if their jobs will remain, if their retirement savings will disappear, he added.

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., said congressional Democrats will "continue pushing for aggressive but necessary measures. Part of that is passing a substantial economic recovery package, like the one President-elect Obama discussed this morning, that creates good-paying jobs here in America and stabilizes a volatile market."

In a slap at President George W. Bush, Reid added, "We will soon finally have a leader and partner in the White House who recognizes the urgency with which we must turn around our economy, and I look forward to working with him and the new Congress to do so."

The Labor Department reported that claims for unemployment benefits jumped last week to the highest level since July 1992, providing fresh evidence of the weakening job market.

"We'll put people back to work rebuilding our crumbling roads and bridges, modernizing schools that are failing our children, and building wind farms and solar panels," Obama said. He also made a commitment to fuel-efficient cars and alternative energy technologies "that can free us from our dependence on foreign oil and keep our economy competitive in the years ahead."

Greg Wetstone, director of government and public affairs for the American

Wind Energy Association, applauded Obama's plans to expand alternative energy resources and called it a "concept very much branded in reality."

"With the policies he has outlined for renewable energy, President-elect Obama is removing the single largest impediment to renewable energy development in this country, which has been the absence of a long-term federal commitment to deploy these technologies."

A spokesman for the trucking industry's main trade group on Saturday said the group, the American Trucking Associations, supports investments in infrastructure as a method of reducing the nation's overall carbon emissions and cutting delays and congestion.

"But nothing is going to help the trucking industry except for an increase in trade and repairs to the economy," said Clayton Boyce, vice president of public affairs for the ATA.

Obama pointed to the past as a reason for optimism, saying that Americans in this country's darkest hours have risen above their divisions to solve their problems, as a hope for the future.

"We have acted boldly, bravely, and above all, together," Obama said. "That is the chance our new beginning now offers us, and that is the challenge we must rise to in the days to come. It is time to act. As the next president of the United States, I will."

Youth Invited to Share Vision for Garland

From staff reports

The Garland Youth Council invites all Garland youth to help shape the future of Garland. The GYC's January 20, 2009 meeting will be devoted to gathering input for the City's Envision Garland comprehensive plan process.

"Garland's youth have a unique perspective on our city's strengths and weaknesses," says GYC Chair

Jaywin Malhi. "City planners want to hear from young people as they formulate a strategic roadmap for Garland's future."

The GYC's Envision Garland workshop will include an overview of the comprehensive plan process and interactive sessions designed to allow participants to discuss specific issues. Participants also will have an opportunity to create a vision statement for Garland's future.

The workshop will be held at the Audubon Recreation Center, located at 342 West Oates Road. It will begin at 5:30 p.m. and will conclude by 7:30 p.m. Please pre-register your plans to attend by calling 972-205-2445.

For more information about Envision Garland, visit EnvisionGarland.org or call the information line at 972-205-2865 or GarlandYouthCouncil.org or call 972-205-2879.

Social Security's New Retirement Estimator Rated the Federal Government's Best Online Service

From staff reports

In the latest quarterly ratings of the University of Michigan's American Customer Satisfaction Index for Federal Websites, the Social Security Administration's new online Retirement Estimator ranked as the best in government. The Retirement Estimator debuted with a score of 90, the highest score in this survey and the second-highest score ever received by a government website. Several other Social Security online services also are rated among the government's top performers and equal to the highest caliber private sector sites, such as Amazon and Google.

"It's great to be recognized as the best, but we're not resting on our laurels," said Michael J. Astrue, Commissioner of Social Security. "We will have a series of new services in the coming year, and we are also improving some of our already successful online services."

The new Retirement Estimator is available at www.socialsecurity.gov/e stimator and gives the public the opportunity to run accurate, personalized scenarios for Social Security retirement benefits in a user-friendly way.

We are at a critical juncture in time, and the likelihood of a special election to replace Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison provides an historic opportunity for Texans to rekindle our can-do spirit and offer forward-looking solutions to the great challenges posed by an economic crisis, record debt, two simultaneous wars, and our dependence on foreign energy.

I have served at every level of government: in three cabinet departments under two presidential administrations, as an elected member of the Texas Railroad Commission and as a local prosecutor in the Midland County District Attorneys office. I know the honor of public service is not holding an office, but preserving the public trust.

If elected, I will address these issues that demand national and international leadership:

1. Economy: we need a long-term prosperity agenda starting with a tax code that rewards work, encourages saving, investment and entrepreneurship; incentives for innovation, research and development yielding to solutions for more and higher-valued jobs, steadier wages and stronger retirements.

2. Energy and Environment: we need to develop pro-growth energy and environment solutions for greater energy security that will produce more American energy, accelerate the use of alternative energy technologies and promote greater energy efficiency and conservation.

3. Education: we need to rekindle a love of learning in America's classrooms, specifically a renewed focus on math, science, engineering and technology.

4. National Security: we need to ensure safer communities and neighborhoods by enforcing our laws, protecting our borders and making sure our military continues to be the strongest in the world to defend America and defeat our enemies.

5. Health care: we need transformational health solutions and policies that create better health care, more choices at affordable costs.

I am uniquely experienced to address these great challenges. Having served in the U.S. Departments of Education, Justice and Treasury, I know we can do so much more to unleash the power of innovation and job creation and to make education and opportunity accessible to all. And as an elected leader in the energy industry, I know we can increase exploration at home, invest in cleaner sources of energy, and protect the environment for future generations.

We can have economic prosperity and cleaner air and water. We can have financial security without our elected officials compromising their conservative principles. We can have an efficient, effective government that controls spending and lives within its means. We can have government accountable to the people.

This campaign is not about me. It's about you. As a candidate, I hope not to be the focal point, but the mirror that reflects the hopes, dreams and concerns of every Texan.

To me change is not just a slogan, it is a lifelong calling. Thousands of Texans have called upon me to take this step—to offer myself up in service to change the way Washington works. I take this step neither lightly nor flippantly, but with full faith in the possibilities of a new tomorrow, and undying devotion to the greatest people on the face of the earth—the people of Texas.

RECESSION SURVIVAL

You were laid off, so now what?

By Eileen AJ Connelly
Associated Press

More than half a million people lost their jobs in November, and the layoff announcements keep coming from companies in almost every industry.

Eleta Jones, associate director for the Center for Professional Development at the University of Hartford in Connecticut, said workers should be prepared to negotiate. For instance you may be able to get access to additional services such as job search assistance.

But it's a particularly important time to discuss benefits such as health care coverage. You may need to look into the cost of extending your current plan through COBRA, or check into what's available through your spouse's job.

"Getting laid off, you don't have to wait until your spouse has open enrollment to get on their health insurance," said Andrea Eaton, a financial planner at Cornerstone Wealth Advisors in Edina, Minn.

Next, it's time to plan for life without a paycheck.

— Reduce withholding taxes. If you've got any time left at work, reduce the amount of taxes taken from your remaining paychecks to maximize your take-home pay. If your spouse works and you file a joint tax return, have his or her withholding reduced as well.

— Defer payment. If you're job is ending this year, and you will receive severance pay in a lump sum, try to get it deferred until after Jan. 1 to minimize 2008 taxes. Far better is to get severance paid over time like a paycheck. If it's paid in a lump sum, it's "almost a sure thing" that you will have too much withheld, said Jonathan T. Guyton, a certified financial planner and principal at Cornerstone Wealth Advisors.

— Manage severance wisely. If you receive a lump sum, deposit the funds into a separate savings account and make weekly transfers to a checking account.

— Act promptly. Apply for unemployment insurance right away. "I think sometimes people feel embarrassed to do that, but it can be a help in a time that's difficult," Jones said.

— Slash expenses. Take a hard look at your household budget and trim wherever possible — and don't wait until cash is running low to do it. "You should get serious about reducing your expenses, particularly the 'nice to haves' as opposed to the 'need to haves,' right away," said Guyton. Among his suggestions: pare down your Internet and cell phone plans to basic services, giving up things like wireless access.

Shaun Rabb, Senior Pastor

Sister Tarpley

During morning worship at Mt. Olive Church of Plano (MOCOP), Minister Sondra Howard-Foster, their new Minister of Music, was singing Jesus is the answer for the world today, but Pastor Sam Fenceroy, Senior Pastor, stopped her and said, "Jesus is not the answer but the problem;" he further said, "I know that many of you have heard that Jesus is the answer, but, if He is the answer, we must first know the question.

Proverbs 18:13 says, "He that answereth a matter before he heareth it, it is folly and shame unto him." Pastor Sam also said that the Bible contradicts that song. He supported his claim with his first text from Genesis 11: 1-11 1And the whole earth was of one language, and of one speech . . . 5"And the LORD came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men builded. 6And the LORD said, Behold, the people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have imagined to do. 7Go to, let us go down, and there confound their language, that they may not understand one another's speech.8So the LORD scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city. 9Therefore is the name of it called Babel; because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth . . ."

Pastor Sam further said that the Israelites were doing great without God, but God was not pleased; therefore, He confused their languages and scattered them all over the face of the earth.

Pastor Sam then explained to us that from the passages of scriptures we can see that God spoke in the plural; "Let us go down". The book of John tells us who the 'us' in the book of Genesis was. John 1: 1 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. 2The same was in the beginning with God. And in verse 14: And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld His Glory, the Glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.

Pastor Sam said that based on those scriptures, Jesus was God and Jesus was the Word. His second scripture also proved his belief that Jesus is the problem as found in Luke 12: 51 "Suppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth? I tell you, Nay; but rather division:" and in 53The father shall be divided against the son, and the son against the father; the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother; the mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law."

Finally, Pastor Sam summed up the message from the book of Genesis 3:16, "Unto the woman He said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee.

When studying these passages, it literally means she will desire to run over him or take her husband place, but he would rule over or dominate her. This is why marriages will not function properly without Jesus.

In all three scriptures we see that the Bible reveals that God was not satisfied with man having great relationships with others without including Him. Pastor Sam concluded by saying that when we do wrong; and it is exposed; Jesus exposed us. He confounded their languages so they could not be one without Him; He divided families who refused to follow Him and He will not allow nations to get along without Him.

Magic Johnson Voices Support for @15

From staff reports

Best Buy Co., Inc. recently unveiled a new Teen Service Announcement featuring basketball legend Earvin "Magic" Johnson at www.at15.org.

"There were all sorts of chances and times that I could have gotten into trouble, but instead of turning right, I turned left," Johnson says in his online TSA. "You should dream high, because I'm a big believer that if you don't dream it, you can't become it. Life passes you by so fast. So, enjoy the moment. Enjoy the time."

In addition to serving as the chairman and chief executive officer of Magic Johnson Enterprises (MJE), Johnson is currently vice president and part owner of the Los Angeles Lakers. A version of the @15 TSA will begin airing during Lakers games with in the next month.

Auto Burglars Target Unattended Vehicles During Holiday Season

From staff reports

This holiday season, auto burglars will shop the easy way – by stealing gifts, purses, wallets, packages, electronics, or other valuables left in plain sight inside vehicles. Every two minutes, a vehicle is burglarized in Texas and the contents stolen. These crimes escalate during the holiday season when people shop more often. And unfortunately, drivers often don't take necessary precautions to avoid becoming burglary victims.

The Texas Automobile

Burglary and Theft Prevention Authority (ABTPA), offers three basic safety tips to motorists to help prevent vehicle crimes during the holidays and throughout the year: hide belongings from view, lock vehicles, and take keys.

"We want everyone to enjoy the holiday season and not experience the violation and frustration of having their vehicles burglarized or stolen. We encourage all vehicle owners and operators to help prevent such crimes from happening by practicing simple theft prevention measures," said Charles Caldwell, interim director of the Texas ABTPA.

When vehicles are stolen, thieves have easy access to everything left inside, including items such as garage door openers, house keys, and personal information, which can all lead to additional and more serious crimes as well as further victimization of the vehicle owner.

"We know that auto burglars scout malls, shopping centers, and other retail parking lots this time of year looking for the perfect opportunity to break into vehicles. Within seconds, these criminals can get inside a car, steal the contents, and be on their way from the scene. And experienced thieves can steal a vehicle without keys in less than a minute," said Michelle Lanham, program coordinator for ABTPA's Reduce Auto Theft in Texas (RATT) public awareness task force at the University of North Texas Caruth Police Institute in Dallas. "Texas drivers need to understand that carelessness with items left inside vehicles actually helps thieves carry out their crimes more efficiently and potentially engage in further criminal activity."
