Things You Can Do To Improve Your Community

From staff reports

Most of us like where we live, but our neighborhoods and communities can be even better.

While many people are concerned about the direction in which our country is heading, it sometimes seems like one person can't make a difference. However, there are many ways - both big and small - that you and your family can improve your neighborhood and community.

Whether it's volunteering at local schools or churches, working with local organizations to improve streets and shopping areas, or simply voting in local elections, there are many relatively easy ways to help make your community better.

"Don't look for other people to lead or fix problems. You can be a leader and a contributor in your community and our country," says Mary T.

Ficalora, author of the new book, "Choosing Honor: An American Woman's Search For God, Family and Country in an Age of Corruption."

"We each have the knowledge and power to help improve our communities and make our streets

The Work of Our Own Hands

By James Clingman
NNPA Columnist

Can you imagine someone becoming a judge, a journalist, a businessman, and a physician, all in one lifetime? Certainly in today's economic climate, all of us should be so blessed to have two or more career paths just to pay for gasoline and food. But seldom do we hear of a person with such varied credentials as those mentioned above, much less someone who is educated in more than one area. In light of the fact that we are, indeed, in a Knowledge-Based Economy, as Peter Drucker pointed out in his book, Post-Capitalist Society, it is important that we know how to do more than one thing; we must become generalists rather than specialists.

Martin Delany was such a man. Born in

Zimbabwe's Mugabe sworn in after discredited vote

Associated Press

HARARE, Zimbabwe — President Robert Mugabe has been sworn in for a sixth term, just hours after electoral officials said he won a discredited runoff.

As dignitaries watched under a red-carpeted tent on Sunday, Mugabe swore to uphold his nation's laws and then sat amid cheering to sign documents.

African and other world leaders had condemned Friday's presidential runoff, in which Mugabe was the only candidate.

Human rights groups said opposition supporters were the targets of brutal state-sponsored violence during the campaign, leaving more than 80 dead and forcing some 200,000 to flee their homes.

Opposition candidate Morgan Tsvangirai withdrew from the race because of the violence.

While you ponder that thought we would like to announce that Minority Opportunity News, Inc., formerly a Dallas based renaissance community tabloid, founded in 1991, has relocated to Plano, Texas, and changed our name to MON-The Gazette. In addition to moving our offices to Plano, our editorial coverage has also shifted to encompass Dallas' Northern Corridor. The Northern Corridor is clearly the fastest growing region in Texas, if not in America. MON-The Gazette believes that the engine to continue this growth is the airport expansion in McKinney, which is the largest and most visible of many area opportunities. As always, and true to tradition, MON-The Gazette will be there carving a world of opportunity for those seeking to provide quality services. Should you dare to expand your quest for economic parity outside the southern region or just want to know what is going on up north. Think of MON-The Gazette as your paper of opportunity!

You Own Undervalued Currency

By Farrah Gray
NNPA Columnist

It is interesting. I recently had an opportunity to meet a gentleman who served as 'Chaplain' for a cancer treatment ward of a major Los Angeles hospital.

He told me that he provided spiritual counsel to many people, from many different faith traditions, and from every economic strata...filthy rich to filthy poor. After further talking, we found each other interesting enough to sit down for a brief chat, which quickly turned into a most engaging conversation about 'Life Economics'.

As we talked, the chaplain looked out of the window toward the Hollywood hills and referred to the disease of cancer as 'the great common denominator'... bringing people who live at the top of hill, and those who lived at the bottom of it, together on one accord. I thought that was an interesting observation, and listened on.

The chaplain began unbosoming a sermon citing that he had made a profoundly great discovery about human beings.

Being a perpetual student of life, I of course had to inquire. So, I did. The chaplain then slowly took a deep breath, relaxed his eyes, steadied his glare into mine and said... 'Farrah. We are all the same at death's doorway.'

Okay, admittedly, I didn't immediately think that this 'great discovery'. However there was something in the man's eye that made me listen deeper to what he was trying to say.

'I ask one question of every patient I see', he says. How do you feel you have spent your life's time? And how do you feel you might spend it differently if you are gifted with the opportunity?' What a question. The chaplain continued... 'Farrah. Not one of these people that I have counseled on their potential death beds have ever once expressed to me that they wished they had spent time making more money, or that they worked longer hours, or that they had spent more time in the office. Not one, Farrah. Not one. Yet in American life.

That is all that we do. We waste our life's time. And the richer they are, the more filled with regret their face is.' He said no more, and just left it at that. There was nothing but loud silence.

I then peered out of the window onto the Hollywood hills, again seeing all of the expansive mansions in the distance; home too many of the rich and the famous that are celebrated daily. Then I thought of all patients up and down the hospital's hallways, and to let the curriculum of his lesson sink into my consciousness.

All of which made me focus with crystal clarity on the value and economics of Life-Time. It seems to me that at the beginning of life we are all (the poor and rich) given something similar to a trust-fund inheritance. Not an inheritance of money but something of greater value; an inheritance of time. And this life 'time' is like an account that we withdraw from until our time is done. But it is how we manage and invest this account of time that determines the quality of each segment of our lives.

And my questions to us is...are we sure that we are managing this account wisely, or just simply spending this time haphazardly in pursuit of things that have no real value to us in the end?

I am a businessperson

like many. However, it is beneficial to us to remember that in our valiant quest for success and the acquisition of outer wealth, we supposedly do this only to increase the quality of our lives and the lives of our families.

We say often that we want financial freedom that we may spend more time with family members. But guess what? You are financially free to do that 'now'. Why? Because it costs you no money. It only costs us a little of the undervalued currency that we spend most of our lives improperly investing, until it totally runs out. Our 'time'. And today, as I reflect upon the many millionaires that the chaplain told me he watched die alone and self-alienated from their families, I wonder if they felt the 'means' justified 'the end' of their lives. I wonder if they felt rich as their money purported them to be.

I earnestly remind us...to spend the currency of your life's time wisely. The outer-wealth can not be taken with you. But the 'Inner Wealth' will be the net-worth of your soul itself.

"Texas Instruments Foundation is proud to be a sponsor of the summer educational outreach programs provided by Dallas Black Dance Theatre and we extend our best wishes for your continued success," states Jack Swindle, Chair Texas Instruments Foundation.

Israel Debates Asylum for New Wave of Sudanese

NNPA

A new wave of refugees from the war in Sudan has landed in Israel where they are appealing to the Israeli government for asylum.

But proposed new legislation in Israel makes the African refugees subject to hefty prison sentences with especially tough sentences for those coming from enemy states, such as Sudan.

"We do not want our small country overrun by an unending flood of desperate foreigners," the Jerusalem Post wrote in a recent editorial which also criticized the new immigration rules.

Majier Pap, representing the southern Sudanese refugees, argued: "We are South Sudanese, mostly Christians, persecuted by a regime of Muslim fundamentalists, who are bitter enemies of Israel - we are, to all intents and purposes, your allies."

African asylum seekers have been crossing into Israel from the Egyptian Sinai since 2006 but their numbers have increased dramatically.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Ehud Olmert has floated the idea of a money offer to Ethiopia, Uganda, the Ivory Coast and Benin - all countries with diplomatic ties to Israel - to take the refugees. Little support has been expressed for the idea although none have rejected it outright.

Moments after the results were announced on state TV, a marching band opened inauguration ceremonies for Mugabe at his official residence. Reporters already had been called to the ceremony.

The electoral commission said total results showed more than 2 million votes for Mugabe, and 233,000 for opposition candidate Morgan Tsvangirai. Turnout was put at about 42 percent, and 131,000 ballots had been defaced or otherwise spoiled, apparently as an act of protest.

Tsvangirai withdrew from the race because of the violence, though his name remained on the ballot and his supporters may have spoiled their ballots rather than vote for Mugabe.

Residents said they were forced to vote Friday by threats of violence or arson from Mugabe supporters who searched for anyone without an ink-stained finger - the telltale sign that they had cast a ballot.

In the opposition stronghold of Bulawayo, official results showed Mugabe got 21,127 votes and opposition candidate Morgan Tsvangirai had 13,291, while 9,166 ballots were spoiled.

A high number of spoiled ballots had been noted earlier Sunday by Marwick Khumalo, a member of parliament from Swaziland who led a team of election observers from across the continent under the auspices of the AU-sponsored Pan-African Parliament.

Khumalo said some ballots were defaced with "unpalatable messages." He refused to elaborate, but left the impression the messages expressed hostility toward Mugabe, who has led the country since independence from Britain in 1980.

Tsvangirai won the most votes in the first round of presidential voting in March, but not enough for an outright victory. African mediators have in recent days been pushing for Mugabe and Tsvangirai to negotiate a power-sharing agreement.

Mugabe said on the eve of Friday's vote that he was open to talks but pressed ahead with the election, apparently hoping a victory would give him leverage at the negotiating table.

Khumalo, the observer, urged African and regional leaders to "engage the broader political leadership in Zimbabwe into a negotiated transitional settlement."

With the election discredited and attention turning to the possibility of negotiations, the role of Mugabe in any future government could be a sticking point.

Tsvangirai said in an interview with The Sunday Telegraph of Britain that Mugabe might be allowed to stay on as ceremonial president of a transitional government, with himself as executive prime minister.

"It's being considered within our structures," the paper quoted Tsvangirai as saying.

Mugabe, 84, was once hailed as a post-independence leader committed to development and reconciliation. But in recent years, he has been accused of ruining Zimbabwe's economy and holding onto power through fraud and intimidation.

The official inflation rate was put at 165,000 percent by the government in February, but independent estimates put the real figure closer to 4 million percent.

Since the first round of elections, shortages of basic goods have worsened, public services have come to virtual standstill, and power and water outages have continued daily.

Church Hosts Health Screenings

Residents living in and around the Richardson, Texas, community can be screened to reduce their risk of having a stroke or heart attack.

Life Line Screening will be at the Richardson Church of the Nazarene on July 10th. The site is located at 2101 E Renner Rd in Richardson. Appointments will begin at 9:00 a.m.

Cardiovascular disease is the number one killer of both men and women in the United States.

Recommended baseline screenings include Stroke/Carotid Artery, Atrial Fibrillation, Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm and Peripheral Arterial Disease.

The Carotid Artery screening uses ultrasound to identify blockages in the arteries in your neck, a leading cause of stroke. The Atrial Fibrillation screening checks for an irregular heart beat and the Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm screening looks for a ballooning of the largest artery in the body.

Screening for Peripheral Arterial Disease checks for blockages in the arteries of the arms and legs, a condition that leaves the individual at 4-5 times higher risk of heart disease.

Additional screenings can be added for a more comprehensive risk assessment and include C-Reactive Protein, a blood marker for vascular disease and diabetes; complete Lipid Panel including HDL/LDL and total cholesterol; Glucose, a measure of blood sugar level which can determine your risk for diabetes; and an ultrasound screening for Osteoporosis.

Pick any four screenings for $140. All eight screenings for only $199.

Shoestomakeadifference.com Launches Venture to Serve Children In Need

Shoestomakeadifference.com, a philanthropic venture dedicated to serving children who are sick or are at risk, has announced the launch of a program that will provide an exciting opportunity for their clients, and consumers who prefer top-of-the-line shoes, clothing, and handbags. Shoestomakeadifference.com is an innovative consignment service designed to help individuals and distributors market and sell their high-end and hard-to-find shoes, clothing, handbags and accessories using the Internet.

Operating as consignor, Shoes to Make a Difference sells items such as Gucci, St. John Knits, Chanel, Jimmy Choo, Louis Vuitton, Manolo Blahnik, and other high-end designer items for a 50% consignment fee. A organization's profits are donated to charities who deliver children social services. Clients who consign are also given the opportunity to donate as well.

"Shoes to Make a Difference benefits many charities of our choosing or charities designated by my clients. Clients will be able to go through their closet of designer fashions that they no longer wear and actually be able to make a difference in a child's life," stated LaTonya Wiggins, founder of 'Shoes to Make a Difference. "Part of the proceeds will benefit charities that are making a difference in children's lives. Anyone who consigns their designer wardrobe receives a commission and at the same time, makes a difference in a child's life. We would love the opportunity to earn your trust and show you will deliver the best service to you in the industry.

On the website the first recipient Candace, born with Giant Congenital Nevus, a very rare skin disorder is highlighted.

One in more than 200,000 babies are born with a nevus of this considerable size located on the face. To date, Candace has had nine surgical procedures to remove the potentially cancerous skin from her face.

Through fundraising efforts, Candace is scheduled for her next surgery in Chicago at the end of July. However she will require two surgeries each year until she is 13. The approximate cost of expenses for each surgery is $10,000. An organization like Shoes to Make a Difference is a great help to parents facing such daunting medical expenses.

RED HOT DEAL at the Old Red Museum of Dallas County History & Culture

The Old Red Museum of Dallas County History & Culture is offering reduced admission to celebrate July 4th. On July 4th through July 6th museum admission will be $4.00 for everyone. That is a savings of $4.00 for adults (1/2 price!); $2.00 for seniors and $1.00 for children. The $4.00 admission covers both the general museum admission to the permanent galleries on the 2nd floor as well as the special temporary exhibit, The Civil War Through the Eyes of North Texans, on the 1st floor.

In between the outdoor barbeque and going to the fireworks show, spend some time on this patriotic holiday at the Old Red Museum. The museum, which is located in what was formerly the Old Red Courthouse, sits on the very first block of Dallas platted by John Neely Bryan. The 6th Courthouse to stand on this block, Old Red has been restored to its 1892 splendor, complete with a 4-story grand staircase, marble hallways and graceful arches.

At the Old Red Museum of Dallas County History & Culture you can explore the past and experience all things uniquely Dallas. Relive the stories, people and events that created the Dallas of today. The Old Red Museum chronicles the vibrant story of Dallas County from pre-history to the present day. What better way to celebrate our proud nation by rediscovering the history of our local area! Four galleries feature 41 touch screen kiosks, more than 1,000 artifacts and rare photographs, and specially commissioned films in each of the 4 theaters. The Crysta Charity Ball Children's Education Center is one of the few hands-on history centers in the country. Test your knowledge of Dallas history on the touch-screen computers.

Through August 17, a special exhibit, The Civil War Through the Eyes of North Texans, examines the Civil War from a mid-1800's North Texas perspective. What impact did the war have on North Texans? The exhibit explores the role North Texas played in the conflict: the men, women, technologies, innovations, records and aftermath of the Civil War and their long-lasting effects on Texas and this country's history.

Highlights from the exhibit are 1) letters and personal correspondence-between John Taylor Coit and his wife Catherine, 2) a Confederate uniform jacket with bullet holes and blood stains, 3) personal effects of soldiers such as dice and playing cards, 4) a Confederate fiddle, 5) children's dresses and clothing, 6) women's fashion accessories, 7) weapons such as handguns, cannon shot and more. Admission to this special exhibit is included in the $4 per person July 4th weekend price.

The Old Red Museum of Dallas County History & Culture is located in the West End of downtown Dallas at 100 South Houston Street in the beautifully restored Old Red Courthouse built in 1892. Dedicated to inspire and educate visitors about the rich and varied cultural, economic, political and social history of the Dallas County area, the 2nd floor of Old Red is filled with interactive exhibits, 41 touch-screen computers, an educational learning center and four mini-theatres. The special exhibit gallery is located on the first floor. Admission to The Civil War Through the Eyes of North Texans is included in general admission. General admission is $8, children ages three to sixteen are $5 and seniors are $6. Admission to the Civil War exhibit without general admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children.

The museum's hours are Monday - Saturday, 9-5 p.m., Sunday Noon - 5 p.m.

Dallas Student To Study at Alvin Ailey, Camp Broadway in New York During Summer Break

The Texas Commission on the Arts (TCA) and the Texas Cultural Trust announced Amber Barbee Pickens as a member of the 2008 Class of Young Masters. The Young Masters grant program provides exemplary art students in grades 8-12 with the financial help they need to pursue advanced study in the areas of visual arts, literature, music, theatre, dance and media arts. Ms. Pickens, one of 15 in the distinguished group, has demonstrated exceptional artistic talent in dance.

As one of the state's most talented artists, Ms. Pickens received the title of "Young Master" and was awarded a grant of $2,500 to further her studies in dance. She has chosen to study dance at The Alvin Ailey School and in theater at Camp Broadway in New York during her summer break. She will be eligible to receive the grant for up to three years. Ms. Pickens is part of the fourth class of Young Masters. The Trust and TCA have awarded 107 grants to 52 previous Young Masters, granting $267,500 to aspiring artists prior to this year's class.

"These young artists were identified as Young Masters due to their phenomenal artistic ability as well as their dedication to developing their talents and knowledge in their chosen discipline," said TCA Chair Billye Proctor Show. "The Commission takes great pride in helping these young people like Amber become prominent artists of the next generation."

This year's class includes 15 students from across Texas. In order to be considered for the grant, students must be U. S. citizens living in Texas and participating in a school-based program, a summer institute, or a specialized course of study or receiving private lessons from a qualified professional instructor. They must also maintain passing grades in all academic areas. Young masters were selected by a citizen panel of experts from across the state based on level of potential, level of commitment and quality of their proposed plan of action. Selection is sensitive to students who have potential yet may be underserved in their community due to financial need or geographic isolation.

The Young Masters program is made possible by generous contributions from AT&T Foundation, Applied Materials, Anheuser Busch Foundation, Burlington Northern Santa Fe, Emerson Electric, Debbie and John Montford of the Plum Foundation, Lt. Governor David Dewhurst, Mrs. W. D. Noel, Mr. George Mitchell, Ray C. Fish Foundation, Raytheon and Texas Women for the Arts.

Ms. Pickens is entering her sophomore year at Booker T. Washington High School for the Performing and Visual Arts. She currently takes private lessons under the artistic direction of Ann Etgen and Bill Atkinson of Etgen-Atkinson School of Ballet in Dallas and has studied with Debbie Allen in Los Angeles. Her dream is to become an accomplished performer on Broadway and own an upscale boutique for girls. Ms. Pickens is the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Jessie M. Barbee and the daughter of Ms. Winsor Barbee and Mr. Zurek Pickens.

To contribute to the fundraising effort, please call The Marketing Collaborative at 469-222-6172.

Real Estate Council's Associate Leadership Council Renovates Oak Cliff Family YMCA

Late spring, thirty members of The Real Estate Council's Associate Leadership Council (TREC ALC) dedicated the Oak Cliff Family YMCA to an enthusiastic audience of 100. The ALC class donated approximately 1,000 volunteer hours—including the majority of physical labor—to refurbish the interior and exterior of this YMCA. The estimated cost of labor and supplies, if they were purchased, would be approximately $120,000 in value.

ALC class member and crew leader Lisa Brinser of Courtland Development thanked her class for all working on the project, and she told everyone about the renovations. "This spring, the ALC class helped launch the series of major renovations planned at the Oak Cliff Family YMCA. Areas impacted included the lobby, childcare and afterschool spaces, kitchen, computer room/library, aerobics/fitness room, hallway and closets. Renovations included reconfiguring rooms, painting, demolition, space planning, replacing floors, updating the kitchen and appliances, adding new light fixtures, etc. Outside, the class replaced signage, added lighting and provided landscaping. Because the swimming program is such an integral part of the YMCA, in the pool area, our members also replaced the deck, installed shade structures, and landscaped."

Michael Brown, vice president of operations for YMCA of Metropolitan Dallas, thanked TREC's ALC class. "We want to thank the entire TREC ALC class, and we have an attitude of gratitude for what you've done for us. We thank Terrance for connecting us with the ALC class." He then presented Lisa Brinser with a staff shirt and hat as she was such an integral part of the renovations. "Lisa became part of the staff, and I want her to know that she can work for us anytime."

New super DART Rail vehicles make their debut as ridership reaches a new milestone

The June DART Board Report leads off with good news: “DART had its busiest month ever providing nearly 10.3 million trips in the month of May. Up more than 2.1% over May 2007, DART’s fixed route ridership continued to benefit from higher gasoline prices.” However, DART Chairman Randall Chrisman points out that despite the high cost of gasoline, bus ridership is down 1.1% compared to the same time last year. The agency feels this is in due in part to neighborhoods with recent apartment teardowns, like Skillman and Walnut Hill Lane. Staff is reviewing the evolving demographic data in an effort to adjust routes appropriately.

To entice commuters concerned about the high cost of gasoline, DART has launched an aggressive advertising campaign to highlight the value of using public transportation.

The next generation of light rail vehicles is in service as DART begins

Key Facts

Super Light Rail Vehicles (SLRVs) seat approximately 25 more people than the standard DART Light Rail Vehicle (which seats approximately 75 and has capacity for up to 150 passengers seated and standing).

The SLRVs will allow passengers with disabilities – plus people with strollers, bicycles, etc. – to step or roll directly onto the trains without using mechanical lifts.

Each of DART’s 115 light rail vehicles will be converted into super light rail vehicles (SLRVs) with the addition of the low-floor rail car insert.

It takes approximately five weeks to convert the LRV to an SLRV. From there it is turned over to DART staff for testing, modifications as needed, and final acceptance.

The SLRV and level boarding projects will be completed in support of the DART Rail Green Line project, a 28-mile $1.8 billion project which will open in stages starting in September 2009 and will be completed in December 2010.

The first phase of the Green Line is a four-station section connecting the current Pearl Station on the east end of Downtown Dallas with Fair Park and South Dallas. That section is scheduled to open in time for the State Fair of Texas in September 2009.

introducing the larger-capacity super light rail vehicle (SLRV). The first car began carrying customers on the Blue Line between Downtown Garland and Ledbetter stations during morning rush hour on June 23.

The modified cars are known as Super Light Rail Vehicles (SLRVs) because of the greater length and added passenger capacity. The SLRV will seat approximately 100 passengers compared with 75 on the current vehicles. Standing passengers on the vehicle can nearly double the capacity.

The key is a new center section of the vehicles that adds seating capacity for about 25 more passengers and improves access through level boarding, which will allow passengers with disabilities – plus people with strollers, bicycles and the like – to step or roll directly onto the trains without using mechanical lifts. The newly modified cars will be placed in service as they are finished. The vehicle conversion is scheduled for completion by the end of 2010.

Because the initial SLRVs are modifications of the current fleet of 115 LRVs, they also have another advantage: the inserts are less expensive than full-sized vehicles. However, DART will need to modify all current stations, except Victory Station, which was built to accommodate level-boarding at the time it was constructed. The platform work began in November 2007 and will continue for two years.

The SLRVs – designed in partnership with rail vehicle manufacturer Kinkisharyo of Osaka, Japan and are assembled at two DART facilities in Dallas. DART’s first SLRV, Car #170, went into service on the Blue Line in 2002 as a prototype.

In the monthly public report provided by DART, it was noted sales tax receipts for April were up 8.36% over April 2007. Year-to-date the agency is 6.48% ahead of last year. April receipts were up 3.15% better than budget, and year-to-date DART is 2.5% ($5.8 million) ahead of budget. This great news is tempered by the rising fuel costs.

It is standard for travel entities such as Southwest Airlines, and DART to secure a fixed price for their fuel by purchasing contracts months in advance. DART’s contract price for bus diesel has broken through the $4 per gallon ceiling. DART and as a result they are now paying more than $4.10 per gallon. This is the latest benchmark in the dramatic price increases experienced over just the last 12 months. According to the DART report, other transit agencies around the nation are dealing with the same issue and are responding with a mix of fare increases and service cuts. However, they feel that thanks to the natural gas excise tax rebate the agency currently benefits from, they currently do not have to resort to such measures at this time but they reserve the option to consider alternatives in the future.

Judge allows Snipes to travel to England, Thailand

Associated Press

Hello London, good-bye IRS.

A federal judge today granted permission for movie star Wesley Snipes to travel to England this month and to Thailand in September while defense lawyers appeal his tax convictions and fight to keep the vampire-hunting hero of "Blade" out of prison.

Over objections from federal prosecutors, Senior U.S. District Judge William Terrell Hodges will allow Snipes to complete post-production work on the horror movie, "Gallowalker" in London and to star as an FBI agent in "Chasing the Dragon," an action film set in Bangkok.

Defense lawyer Daniel Meachum said Snipes, 45, who was allowed to travel overseas while his case was pending, has proven that he is not a flight risk.

But prosecutors pointed out that Snipes' "motivation to return to the United States has changed drastically" with a 36-month prison sentence hanging over his head for failing to file federal tax returns for 1999, 2000 and 2001 when he earned more than $13 million.

They also noted his travel request for Thailand is less specific than for London, where he is to work from July 13-17.

"It would be one thing to allow (Snipes) to travel across the Atlantic for a brief and defined period of time to finish a project that is nearly complete," prosecutors said in their written opposition filed in federal court. "It would be another to allow (him) to spend two months - likely more - beginning a new project half-way around the world with an open-ended return date."

The actor estimates he would be in Thailand for about eight weeks beginning Sept. 8, according to court records.

JumpStart for Arts at the Art Centre of Plano

by
Rick Elina

Ask any kid what summertime means and the answer will invariably be the same. Summertime means fun time! The Art Centre of Plano is doing their part to see to it that a fun time is exactly what area youths will experience in their annual JumpStart for Art summer event.

Karis Jones, Exhibition and Event Coordinator, for The Art Centre of Plano, says, "JumpStart for Arts is a free summer program specifically designed for children who might not have the opportunity to attend a summer camp or an after school arts lesson. These children most often are from families with the greatest need. Through JumpStart we offer Art, Dance, Music and Drama to children 8 - 15 years old. This unique program is sponsored by a grant from the City of Plano."

The majority of kids who attend this camp have not experienced a program like this. Many are only exposed to limited amounts of music and art through the public school system. This is the ArtCentre of Plano's sixth summer to receive the grant and provide this amazing program to the deserving children in Plano.

Each summer the ArtCentre also chooses an exhibition to hang in the gallery specifically with children in mind. This summer the exhibition is sampler: Julio Suarez - a bright, colorful look at Julio's world. His work is reminiscent of Matisse and Picasso and will be on display at the ArtCentre through August 16th.

The ArtCentre of Plano, Inc., formerly known as the Cultural Arts Council of Plano, Inc., was founded in 1981 as a private non-profit organization to promote growth and development of emerging community arts groups. The mission of The ArtCentre of Plano, Inc., is to encourage, support, and promote excellence, diversity, and vitality in the arts and arts education in the Greater Plano area.

To enroll in JumpStart or to find out more information please call 972-423-7809 or pick up an enrollment form at the ArtCentre of Plano located in the N.W. corner of Ave K and 15th in historic downtown.

Business Basics for Entrepreneurs Seminars Planned in July

The PLAN Fund is pleased to announce the date of its upcoming business training class "Business Basics for Entrepreneurs." This class combines financial management and other key business concepts, such as Marketing, Forecasting, Cash Flow, Pricing, and Business Planning. Upon completion of the training class students will receive a PLAN Fund certification and become eligible for program membership, access to business loans and networking events.

The PLAN Fund, a non-profit organization whose mission is to assist entrepreneurs in achieving success in starting and/or expanding their small business, Hamilton Park United Methodist Church and the Hispanic

Chamber of Dallas partnered together to offer entrepreneurs a way to increase their standard of living, create jobs for the community and achieve their dreams of supporting themselves in a small business.

The events are scheduled at Hamilton Park United Methodist Church, 1881 Schroeder Rd, Dallas 75243: July 12, 19, 26 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. and at the Dallas Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, 2060 Singleton Blvd, Ste 102, Dallas 75212: July 12, 19, 26 from 1 p. m. to 6 p.m.

The cost is $35.00 early registration; $40.00 late registration. You can register at www.planfund.org or call Marisol Montonya at 214-942-6698

Free Online Training and E-Book On Small Business

In a time of economic difficulties for American families and businesses, banks and financial institutions are doing less and less to help. Just recently MSNBC news reported that credit card companies are decreasing and canceling the spending limits of millions of their credit card holders.

In addition, banks have tightened up their criteria for applicants applying for mortgage, signature and business loans - so much, that denied applications are at a record high.

The Global Institute of Small and Minority Business Grants has created a web site, Business-Grants.com, to help education entrepreneurs about their options for business grants. Grants are monetary aids given to business owners and entrepreneurs by non-profit organizations, private corporations, and local and federal government agencies.

The web site, accompanied with a free e-book, offers free training about business grants, and targets small business owners of any ethnic background and minority business owners that are African American, Hispanic, Asian, and Native American. Essentially, the training was created for everyone that is not an owner of a large corporation.

The web site offers a detailed discussion of what business grants are, why they exist, how to find them, how to apply for them, and what the potential disadvantages are. It also features a listing of valuable resources (organizations, books, etc.) for individuals that are interested in obtaining a business grant.

The site utilizes compelling video clips, pictures, diagrams, and flow charts, to help individuals who learn better visually.

Interested ones can access the free training and e-book by visiting: www.business-grants.com.

Critical Career Networking Tips:

These job-search career networking tips -- how to build and strengthen your network, the power of informational interviews and networking, and more -- have been gathered from numerous sources throughout Quintessential Careers and organized here for your convenience.

To understand the importance of networking, it's helpful to examine how people get their jobs. The U.S. Department of Labor says that only about 5 percent of people obtain jobs through the "open" job market --consisting primarily of help-wanted ads on the Internet and in print publications. Another 24 percent obtain jobs through contacting companies directly -- the cold-contact method of job-hunting.

Twenty-three percent obtain jobs through such means as employment agencies, college career-services offices and executive-search firms.

The remaining 48 percent -- nearly half of all jobhunters, obtain their jobs through referrals -- that is word of mouth.

How do they get referrals and find out about jobs through word of mouth? By networking.

Because communication is growing increasingly global, a person's career network can include persons from a much larger geographic area, observed career development therapist Janet Scarborough in the Q&A interview she did with Quintessential Careers. "This expansion can be really exciting and fun. I would not have met [QuintZine editor] Kathy Hansen, for instance, if I had not participated in ProfessionalJobTalk, a networking forum for career-development professionals. The Internet also offers a tremendous opportunity for free agents and entrepreneurs to sell their products and services directly to consumers. When I first began my career counseling practice, I built a simple Web site. Most of my first clients found me via the Web. It was a rewarding, inexpensive way for me to start my business," Scarborough notes.

One of the best sources of networking contacts for college students is the guest speakers that come to talk to your classes. These professionals are a vast untapped resource. One of our students who was interested in a career in pharmaceutical sales went up to a guest speaker from that industry after the presentation and introduced herself. She asked the pharmaceutical rep if she could send him her resume. He agreed, and she kept in touch with him throughout the next semester before she graduated. By the time she claimed her diploma, she had lined up a $40,000 a year job with the drug firm.

safe and cleaner, strengthen our schools and hospitals and even help lead our local governments," she added.

Here are some ways you and your family can work to improve your community:

* First of all, tune in, stresses Ficalora. Learn what's going on in your community, your world and your government. Think about what things you would like to improve and find out if others are working to improve these same areas. Either join their groups or start your own.

* Buy from local stores. Local stores and businesses pay taxes that help the neighborhood and community. They advertise locally and help the economy where you live. Also, buying locally helps the environment by reducing energy consumption necessary to transport goods over long distances. So look to local stores and farms for groceries and other goods.

* Move your money into community banks that contribute to your neighborhood, state and region. Since we all need to have bank accounts, why not establish them in places that help your hometown?

** Vote in local and national elections. Pay attention and question the motivation of authorities. Consider giving your time to a local campaign or cause, or even running for office. Remember, you can voice your opinion not just about things that are wrong, but about how to fix them. Find out where your local tax dollars are going and get involved to help ensure they are directed to needy causes - be they local schools, emergency rooms, law enforcement, roads, etc.

These are only a few ways to get started strengthening your community and the country. For more ideas, read Ficalora's new book "Choosing Honor," available at bookstores or online at www.availpress.com.

ing, and understanding that to whom much is given much is required, are good places to start. We should also teach our youth that no matter their station in life, no matter their resources, no matter the barriers they face, they can make it. And last but not least, we should teach them about the legacy left by their ancestors, and instill in them the fact that they are standing on the shoulders of strong determined Black people; therefore, they have an obligation that rises far above self-aggrandizement and self-absorption.

As I have said many times, all the lessons we need, all the knowledge we need to succeed in this country and in this world as it exists today, lies in the accomplishments of our ancestors, especially in the area of economic empowerment. The "struggles" we face today pale in comparison to what our people went through during their early existence in America. So let's stop the negative behavior and get busy with a lot more positive behavior, heeding the lessons along the way.

Marcus Garvey said, "The Negro must be up and doing if he will break down the prejudice of the rest of the world. We must strike out for ourselves in the course of material achievement, and by our own effort and energy present to the world those forces by which the progress of man is judged." Garvey also admonished, "Whatsoever you want in life you must make up your mind to do it for yourself and accomplish it for yourself, and then God will bless the effort, because He will realize that you are using your intelligence for the best."

Now to whom are you going to listen? Marcus Garvey, Martin Delany, Ida B. Wells, Maria Stewart? Or, will you follow those who would keep you in one place, doing one thing, and never reaching your full potential? Who knows? Maybe you or your child could be the next Delany - multi-talented, multi-skilled, and determined to use your resources to help Black people. If our ancestors could do it in the 1800's surely we can do even more today.

Sunday School: 9:30 A.M.
Sunday Worship Service: 11:00 A.M.
Wednesday Night-
Community Bible Class 7:30 P.M.

Someone asked, "How do God speak to individuals when they pray for an answer?" When praying to God about a decision, how they can be sure when God answers them.

This reminded me of a conversation that I had with a teacher of my daughter, Minister Sheila Tarpley Lott, when she was in Junior High School in Carrollton. We were praying about a problem in her life at the time. She said, "I just wish that I could make an appointment with God; sit across from His desk and talk to Him." I smiled and told her that God was closer to her than sitting across from a desk. God speaks to us in various ways; ways that we can understand Him and what He is saying to us. He said to be still and know that I am God.

It has been said that there is a pattern in the way God speaks to us when we are faced with any decision, especially major decisions in our life. First we must spend time seeking direction from God and ask Him to speak to us regarding our decision. Next we need to spend time in prayer and the Word of God (Bible study.) Jesus said, "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: John 10:27 (KJV).

God's Word also says, "For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh: (For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds;) Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ; And having in a readiness to revenge all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled. 2 Corinthians 10:3-6 (KJV).

With so many ungodly things going on in our society today. Trouble on every hand (short temples, loss of jobs, loss of homes, road rages, domestic violence, fights with neighbors, friends and children, killings, stealing, etc.) We must not become impatient while waiting for God's answer; ask God to rebuke every evil thought that comes to our mind. To tear down every stronghold in our life, and to help us to bring captivity to the obedience of His Word. We need to ask for His help to overcome and to rise up above all that pulls us down. We want to soar like Eagles and have sweet fellowship with Him.

Something to Ponder: In God's Holy Word we read that His grace is sufficient to meet every need. This becomes clear when trials come (as they will) and we pray continually. It's at these times that we need to call on Him, bowing in complete submission on bending knees. We can then become His softened clay ready for molding, as we pray humbly. Remember that heartaches, tragedies, disappointments and pain are the Potter's (God's) tools for our Spiritual gain.

Whatever hardships we encounter each day only conform us to His will and His way. God walks with us as we go through it all—Many times carrying us, lest we should fall. Have you read the poem, "Footsteps in the Sand?" It speaks of seeing only one set of steps when the trials and tribulations were of their greatest pain.

The truth that we simply believed before, now become a reality. Then we know more fully what it's all about—God's grace is sufficient, without a doubt. "My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness. 2 Corinthians 12:9.

Potter's House Joins The Angel Food Ministries Network

With the cost of food escalating, The Potter's House offers a means to help stretch the household food dollar. Beginning in July, The Potter's House, along with The Way Ministries, will facilitate a food assistance program where for $30 a family of four will receive a week's worth of groceries valued at $75.

This program is available through the Angel Food Ministries, a non-profit, non-denominational organization that provides food to all people regardless of background, income, race, etc. Interested persons pay the fee for a basic box of food which contains name brand, fresh and frozen food items. Orders are then picked up at the church at a designated day and time. According to Elder Roger Haley,

The Potter's House Volunteer Department

Director, "With this tight economy, requests for food assistance has increased. We had to devise a way to ensure children, seniors and others received help. Angel Food Ministries proved to be the way. Their program offers double the food for the cost and is open to everyone. We are happy to offer this service to the community."

This program is open to

Ford Seeking Recent HBCU Graduates

Ford is offering up the road trip of a lifetime to two recent Historically Black College & University (HBCU) graduates as part of its 2008 Black College Road Trip. Dubbed "Roadies," the graduates will travel 13,000 miles across the U.S. for 92 days, in an all-new 2009 Ford Flex customized by Funkmaster Flex. They will visit HBCU Football Classic games in cities like Atlanta, New Orleans and Memphis while showing off the Flex and their HBCU pride. This marks Ford's eighth year of kicking off the program and the Ford Flex's debut on the "ultimate road trip."

While on the road, they will serve as Ford community ambassadors as they engage in activities within the local community and share stories about their own HBCU experience. They will also visit various African American historical landmarks and partner with key community organizations like the Susan G. Komen Foundation.

At the games, the Roadies will participate in on and off field activities like pre-game parades, step-shows and halftime updates.

Crystal Greene,

Sponsorships & Diverse Markets Manager for Ford says, "We are looking forward to having the chance to work with some of the most talented HBCU graduates who embody the Ford personality with their positive, can-do attitudes, commitment to servicing the community and keen interest in the HBCU community. Interested applicants must be energetic, preferably possess a background in communications or a related field and be eager to get their careers rolling with the 2008 Ford Black College Road Trip. For more information or to apply, please visit www.fordurban.com
