Dallas churches to participate in Punt, Pass and Porn event

(NDG Wire) On the day of America's biggest game, more than 300 churches will tackle one of America's biggest problems by observing National Porn Sunday on Feb. 6.

"It's the Sunday of the Super Bowl, and the game generates huge numbers," organizer Craig Gross said.

"It is estimated that 95 million will watch the Super Bowl, but research shows that 40 million Americans visit porn sites every day. The porn revenue is larger than the revenues of the professional football, baseball or basketball leagues in this country."

Gross started XXX-

church.com, a revolutionary web network that exists to help people who are in over their heads with pornography. XXXchurch is the ministry that created National Porn Sunday.

The focus of Porn Sunday is to get churches and

The ink is all but dry on Texas Voter ID law

By Sen. Royce West
A routine by comic Bill Cosby weaves the tale of a daily walk to school in telling kids how hard he had it growing up. It was five miles each way, Cosby said, "uphill, both ways." Such is the task facing Texas Democrats' attempt to block potentially harmful revisions to Texas' election laws that are so important to Republicans, that Gov. Rick Perry declared it an "emergency" item, putting it on a fast-track through legislative timelines.

Former President Bill Clinton once said that elections have consequences and Democrats will soon pay the price for staying home for the midterm elections. Passing what will be the country's toughest voter ID law was made easier when more than 20 Democrats were ousted on the way to Republicans gaining a 101-member super-majority in the Texas House. This means Republicans can convene and pass legislation without a single

Did you know that blacks celebrated the start of the Civil War?

By Dr. Frank Smith Jr. (TriceEdneyWire.com)
For White America - both North and South - the firing on Fort Sumter April 12, 1861, was a cause for tribulation and anxiety. But, for free and enslaved Black Americans, the onset of the Civil War was a cause for celebration and a time for jubilee.

The Northern press fretted over whether the union could be saved. The Southern press railed on about the threat to the demise of the South's "Peculiar Institutions" - slavery - while the Black Press rejoiced in headlines, such as, "The Coming Hour",

Dr. Patricia Mathes

Dr. Patricia Mathes, a professor at Southern Methodist University, received the Distinguished Alumni Award from the Baylor Alumni Association in a presentation on Friday, Jan. 21, in Waco. Former Texas governor Mark White—a 1962 Baylor graduate and 1965 law graduate—was emcee of the event.

The Distinguished Alumni Award, presented annually since 1965 as the highest honor the Baylor Alumni Association bestows, recognizes Baylor graduates whose records of service in their professions and vocations have merited the honor and acclaim of peers and colleagues.

Mathes is Texas Instruments Chair of Evidence-Based Education, Professor of Teaching and Learning, and Director of the Institute for Evidence-Based Education at

SMU. She earned her bachelor's degree from Baylor in 1984, a master's degree in education at the University of Houston, and her doctorate in education and human development from Vanderbilt University. She has served on the faculties at the University of Texas/Houston Medical School, the College of Education at Florida State University, and the Peabody College for Teachers at Vanderbilt.

Mathes is an internationally respected reading expert. The research she began in 1991, funded in part by the U.S. Department of Education, proves it is possible to reduce the incidence of reading disabilities to less than 1 percent, and she has developed a curriculum to do just that.

During the alumni association's Hall of Fame awards event, eighteen other awards were presented to alumni and friends of Baylor University. A partial list is below. For more biographical information about the recipients, go to the current issue of the Baylor Line, the magazine of the Baylor Alumni Association at <http://www.baylorline.com/>.

Where did all the Haiti money go?

By Nicole C. Lee, Esq.
When a 7.0 magnitude earthquake hit Haiti on January 12, 2010 the world community came to its aid. Millions of private citizens in this country and around the world reached into their household budgets and gave generously to the Haitian people who were grappling with the devastation.

We sat in front of our televisions and watched men digging for their families. We gave more. We heard doctors lament the lack of supplies. We gave more. In March, the United Nations member states and international partners met in New York and passionately pledged more than $5 billion over the next 18 months to help Haiti recover.

Despite the billions of dollars pledged from private citizens and world governments, a serious health scare has arisen. With poor sanitation, malnutrition, little safe drinking water and no sewage systems, the over-crowded temporary housing tent communities provide an ideal breeding ground for cholera.

One independent report has conservatively estimated that there is one toilet for every 273 people in the Port-au-Prince metropolitan area. Throughout Haiti, a year after we opened our hearts and wallets, the latrines are not cleaned on a regular basis and human waste spreads into the streams by the frequent rains. Now, a year later, limited water distribution continues, with little development of sustainable, municipal water-filtration systems.

In the face of these conditions, Haiti remains the non-governmental organization (NGO) capital of the world. Before the earthquake, there were more than 5,000 organizations on the ground in Haiti. From the International Red Cross to Save The Children to any number of church and civic organizations, Haiti is replete with people of good will who are there to make it a better place to live. Each of these organizations conducted their own fundraising campaigns after the earthquake and collected millions of dollars.

With millions of dollars at our disposal do we really lack the ability to support basic sanitation and clean water? Do we lack the ability to stop a preventable, deadly water-borne disease right off our coast? What happened to all of the money?

Many of the charities on the ground have reported they are setting aside a portion of their donations (sometimes up to 70 percent) for the "reconstruction" period. It's clear from the outpouring of support many of those who donated from their own scarce family budgets believed they were giving to save lives immediately. In the face of a preventable public health emergency, like cholera, many will be surprised that more than half of their donations continue to sit in U.S. banks.

My organization has attempted for nearly a year to get the Red Cross to account for the money they collected for Haiti. In a recent meeting, I was told that 70 percent of their donations remain in "reserve" to be used for longer-term reconstruction.

Long-term development to secure transitional and permanent housing, build infrastructure outside of Port-au-Prince and promote public health campaigns are all extremely important issues. But if the Red Cross, whose mandate and expertise lie in emergency and crises management, is not responding to continued immediate emergencies on the ground, then who is? Who is responsible for the deteriorating quality of life and preventable suffering faced by those most affected by the earthquake?

We have asked the House oversight Committee, to hold a hearing on large private NGOs and USAID partner organizations to ask one simple question: "What happened to all of the money?" Though significant promises of donations have been made, many communities of earthquake survivors continue to face challenges in accessing even the most basic of services. Our repeated requests to determine where the money went have fallen on deaf ears.

We need to know who is responsible for coordinating the money donated to Haiti? Who is holding the thousands of NGO's on the ground accountable for the money they collected from U.S. families and families around the world? Moreover, who is pressuring the

Others will also feel the repercussions. Republicans are pushing through a bill for which testimony provided no projections on actual implementation costs. Analysts say this unfunded mandate will pass along costs to county governments. And while we mull the reality of laying off thousands of teachers, our colleagues don't mind diverting resources to solve a problem that doesn't exist.

On the new session's second day, Senate Republicans passed a rule to bypass the longstanding tradition requiring 2/3 of members' approval for bills to come up for a vote. Less than a week later, Senate Bill 14 cleared committee in an evening-long hearing. The next evening, the bill passed the full senate on a party-line vote.

SB14 will require Texas voters to display a current government-issued photo ID to cast a ballot. Republicans claim a new law is needed to prevent election day fraud by those who show up at polling sites bearing fake voter registration cards. No evidence exists that validates claims of massive voter fraud of this type. Democrats support laws that insure the integrity of the ballot. But SB14 does not address known improprieties surrounding mail-in ballots.

Evidence does exist that minorities, the elderly and disabled are more likely to be without a driver license or state-issued photo ID. And throughout debate, Senate Democrats foretold the hardships that SB14 could cause would-be voters.

In parts of Texas, citizens must drive more than 100 miles to a Department of Public Safety (DPS) location to obtain a state ID. There's no DPS office in 77 of Texas' 254 counties. Newly-married or recently-divorced women could have problems with names on voter registration cards that don't match those on state IDs. And missing accepted forms of identification can deny or delay the issuance of state-issued ID to applicants.

Eight states require voters to present photo identification. None are as restrictive as SB14 looks to be. Neither Indiana nor Georgia laws, both high-profile cases, repel voters like SB14 will. Georgia allows use of an expired state-issued driver license and any valid photo ID issued by the federal government, state agency, county or municipality. Indiana permits use of a photo ID issued by any state or federal agency or a photo ID issued by a state university. Michigan law says voters without a state photo ID can use a current out-of-state license or ID, or a college or high school picture ID.

Democrats may have to depend on the U.S. Justice Department to reject a photo ID law they view as unfair. Any changes to voting laws must pass federal pre-clearance due to Texas' history of voter suppression.

Call some Texans un-American and you may have a fight on your hands. But on the night of the State of the Union Address when the president sought to rally the nation around a theme of unity, Texas' leadership treaded down a path that would only further divide.

Our kids are getting fatter...and hungrier?

(NDG Wire) If the war against childhood obesity was a race, America would still be at the starting line.

Childhood obesity has tripled in the past 30 years. About one out of every three children or teens is overweight or at risk of being overweight. Because children's bodies are still developing, the damage to organs triggers medical problems extending throughout their lifetimes, according to a report issued by First Lady Michelle Obama's Task Force on Childhood Obesity.

Nearly 75 percent of Americans will be overweight or obese by 2019, and that condition will drag down the economy and impoverish the nation. What's worse is that our nation is growing fatter at the same time it is growing hungrier. Another study by New York's Food Research and Action Center describes another dilemma -- a new definition of hunger that actually describes how families can become obese at the same time they are going hungry.

"The term the scientists used is 'food-insecure,'" said Erin Baker, founder of Erin Baker's Wholesome Baked Goods (www.bb-cookies.com), a bakery that combines the appeal of baked goodies with nutritional benefits to help fight obesity. "It describes the condition that hits a huge sector of the population. Low-income people tend to seek out cheaper food which in most cases is fast food, the result is a high calorie diet with poor nutritional value -- just a lot of empty calories void of fruits, vegetables and grains.

Baker's own journey started with being 20 pounds overweight and not feeling well most of the time as a result. She regarded food as an afterthought, but soon embarked on her own personal campaign to change her food and feel better. That campaign, combined with her 17 years in the natural food market, has inspired her advocacy of the fight against childhood obesity. She recommends the following steps for people who want to help reverse the trend toward obesity in their families' lives:

- Fruits, Vegetables, Grains -- Providing a diet that includes six to nine servings of fruits, vegetables and grains per day will change your family's life. It will give them more energy, enable them to exercise more effectively and truly give everyone the fuel they need.

- Preparation -- It's easy to let the fast-paced nature of American life become the tail that wags the dog with regard to you and your family's nutrition. Each meal should be thought of as sustenance, and you should ask yourself every day, "What is this meal doing for my body and my family's bodies?"

- Food as Fuel -- The cooking show revolution on cable has America's mouths watering for tasty new dishes, but if you want to actually be healthier, you should also regard your food as the stuff that fuels your body. You wouldn't try to fuel your car with garbage. It wouldn't work. Why do you think your body is any different?

"I hear all the time about how people just don't have time to prepare decent meals anymore, and how they'd never have time for lunch if it wasn't for the drive-through," Baker said.

"What we feed ourselves and our families is killing us, killing our kids and one day soon, it might actually serve to cripple our nation. Our families need to eat the right foods to truly satisfy the appetite...this will curb the tendency to eat the junk foods that cause obesity. There is a fine line between being unhealthy and being sick, and we have a whole country just about to cross that line. But in the face of these new studies, we really need to focus and change our habits now and start eating healthier."

New Healthy Choice entrees help incorporate dietary guidelines into everyday life

Single-serve frozen meals combat 'portion distortion' and overconsumption of calories

(NDG Wire) ConAgra Foods announced this week four new Healthy Choice® Café Steamers® meals and nine recently improved All Natural Entrées. ConAgra Foods and its Healthy Choice brand have a solution for incorporating the dietary guidelines into people's everyday lives in a way that's practical, simple and economical.

"One of the leading nutritional problems identified in the Dietary Guidelines for Americans is the imbalance of calories in versus calories out, with the overconsumption of calories strongly linked to portion distortion and calorie density," said Mark Andon, Ph.D., vice president, Nutrition, ConAgra Foods. "Independent research shows that frozen single-serve meals, such as our new Healthy Choice entrées, can help people lose weight better and more rapidly than healthy eating plans that don't include frozen single-serve meals. Frozen single-serve meals offer portion and calorie control, and are generally lower in calorie density."(1-4)

Like all Healthy Choice frozen meals, the new varieties parallel the dietary guidelines in a number of ways. With nearly 70 delicious options, Healthy Choice frozen meals are low in fat and saturated fat, include many whole-grain and meatless selections, are controlled in sodium and cholesterol and, importantly, are appropriately portioned with the calorie content clearly labeled. Each new single-serve frozen entrée contains between 220 and 360 calories, and no Healthy Choice meal exceeds 500 calories. Additionally, the meals are low in calorie density and calorie-dense foods have been identified as a major issue contributing to obesity.

New Asian Inspired Healthy Choice Café Steamers meals include Lemon-grass Chicken & Shrimp, Kung Pao Chicken, Pineapple Chick-en, and Beef Teriyaki. The existing All Natural Entrées product line has been updated with a one-step steaming tray to unlock a fresher taste and more vibrant flavor. The contemporary recipes include Asian Potstickers, Pumpkin Squash Ravioli, Portabella Spinach Parmesan, Three Cheese Marinara, Portabella Marsala Pasta, Tortellini Primavera Parmesan, Roasted Red Pepper Marinara, Creamy Basil Pesto, and Lobster Cheese Ravioli. Suggested retail prices of Healthy Choice frozen meals range from $2.00 to $3.29.

Hunt's tomatoes: Because of the tomato's popularity and nutritive value, the 2010 Dietary Guidelines outline a new red-orange vegetable sub-group that provides a greater focus on tomatoes. This new guideline can be met easily by consuming just one more serving of tomatoes each day. Also, encouraging greater tomato consumption may help increase overall vegetable intake since canned tomatoes, such as Hunt's®, are readily available year round, widely accepted by consumers, convenient and economical. Canned tomatoes can also offer nutritional benefits. According to a study reported in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, lycopene absorption is two to three times greater in canned tomato products than in raw tomatoes.

Orville Redenbacher's Gourmet Popping Corn: Beyond mealtime, calorie and portion control are also important when it comes to snacking. According to the dietary guidelines, snacks account for 25 percent of the calories consumed in the U.S. and can lead to weight gain. Orville Redenbacher's® 94 percent fat-free SmartPop!® popcorn, available in 100-calorie mini bags, is a low-fat, whole-grain snack that can help people stick to reduced-calorie eating plans while still feeling full and satisfied.

When compared with other 100-calorie snacks, popcorn offers the advantages of whole grains and fiber to help control hunger, which in turn can help prevent overeating and make losing weight easier.

Gallery 219 at Eastfield presents 'Crowd of Drifters'

(NDG Wire) Gallery 219 at Eastfield College presents Trish Igo and Jill OBriens "Crowd of Drifters: The Collection" with a special viewing of the documentary film "still, life" by Tania Khalaf and Meta Newhouse from Feb. 4 – Mar. 3; Reception: Feb. 4, 6 – 8 pm.

Since 2005, artists Trish Igo and Jill OBrien have collaborated on a series of work examining their emotional relationship to animals. As others have adopted unwanted strays, Igo and OBrien have adopted the neglected remains of pets, strays, and injured or dying wildlife. They compulsively collect, name, photograph and even prepare these lost animal lives for a proper rest. And then they present the document of these rituals to us, so that perhaps we too will sense the loss of life and regain a more intimate understanding of the beings with which we share this world. Visually haunting, Igo and OBriens work serves as a reminder of our own mortality.

In conjunction with the exhibition, a documentary film by Tania Khalaf and Meta Newhouse will be on view. The documentary film explores the curious and compassionate process performed by Trish Igo and Jill OBrien as they collaborate to make work about our relationship to these animals. Khalaf and Newhouses film won Best Short Film at the Austin Film Festival in 2005.

Trish Igo holds a Master of Fine Arts from the University of North Texas. She is currently an Adjunct Professor in the College of Visual Arts & Design at the University of North Texas and was recently invited to collaborate with New York digital ecoartists, Ecoarttech on their commissioned exhibition, Fluid Frontier.

Jill OBrien holds a Master of Fine Arts from the University of North Texas. She is currently an Adjunct Professor in the College of Visual Arts & Design at the University of North Texas. Her work has been included in numerous regional and national exhibitions including Snap to Grid at the Los Angeles Center for Digital Art, Los Angeles.

The exhibition features various artworks composed from a wide array of media by 48 participating artists from across the state, all who are members of the Texas Sculpture Association (TSA). The artists selected for this exhibition include: Al Moore, Amber Block, Andrea Davis, Andrew Bachenheimer, Anne Neal, Annelies Christian, Art Wells, Cassandra Fink, Chris Lattanzio, Cynthia Daniel, Dan Dudley, Deana Hinchcliff, Diana Chase, Diana Morrison, Dottie Whiplash, Dr. Adriana Cobo-Frenkel, Eli Lorenz, Elizabeth (Sissy) Bingham, and Tony Collins.

This annual event is a staple for TSA, giving its members an opportunity to showcase their work.

The TSA is a statewide non-profit organization that provides sculptors the opportunity to learn more about the art of sculpture and share their artistic vision with the general public. "The success of the arts resides not only with the artist, but with the relationships that are built in the communities.

(NDG Wire) The City of Plano Animal Services Division will have nickel neutering for male cats on Thursday, Feb. 24 as part of Spay Day USA 2011. Appointments must be made in advance for this one-day event held at the Plano Animal Shelter, 4028 Plano Parkway.

Microchipping will also be available for an additional $15 fee per cat. This year the FVRCP vaccination will also be administered for $5 each.

Spay Day USA originated through the Doris Day Animal Foundation and is now an annual campaign by The Humane Society of the United States.

DART approves agency's first CNG bus order

(NDG Wire) In the latest phase of its clean transit fuels program, the Dallas Area Rapid Transit (DART) board has approved one of the nation's largest compressed natural gas (CNG) bus orders.

The $210 million contract with North American Bus Industries, Inc. of Anniston, Alabama will allow the agency to purchase up to 452 new 30-foot and 40-foot heavy duty, low floor buses to replace the current fleet of liquefied natural gas (LNG) and clean diesel buses which began service in 1998. The new buses are scheduled to be in service in 2013. The full fleet conversion should be complete in 2015.

DART plans to award a contract in April for the construction of four CNG fueling stations. The stations will be located at its bus and Paratransit maintenance facilities.

Educators urge lawmakers to support the Make Education a Priority resolution

(NDG Wire) Members of the Texas Association of School Boards and the Texas Association of School Administrators visited Austin on Monday together to ask Texas lawmakers to Make Education a Priority while building the state's budget.

Superintendents and trustees specifically discussed the devastating impact proposed cuts would have on Texas schools and the state's future.

About half of all Texas public school districts have adopted the Make Education a Priority resolution, which urges lawmakers to hold education as the highest priority when developing the state's budget for the next biennium. The Make Education a Priority campaign was started by the Aledo Independent School District as a way to increase public awareness about the problems with the way public schools are funded in Texas.

The initial drafts of the state budget proposed by the House and the Senate include approximately $10 billion reductions to Texas public schools over the next two years. This reduction comes after years of district belt-tightening, since the target revenue froze revenue for schools at 2005-06 levels. In light of the proposed state funding cuts, local school districts across the state are facing crippling choices such as teacher layoffs and school closures.

A world-class public education system is critical to Texas' economic success. Such severe funding cuts for the public schools charged with preparing our future workforce and state leaders is shortsighted. TASB and TASA members recognize the challenges awaiting lawmakers, but we urge them to Make Education a Priority when considering budget decisions: please do not balance the state's budget on the backs of Texas students.

Caruth Institute's Reduce Auto Theft program gets award

(NDG Wire) Reduce Auto Theft in Texas (RATT), a grant program within the University of North Texas at Dallas Caruth Police Institute, recently was presented the "Outstanding Crime Prevention Agency of 2010" award by the Texas Chisholm Trail Crime Prevention Association.

Michelle Lanham and Katheryn Fredericks staff the program located in the Caruth Institute's offices at the Jack Evans Police Headquarters building. Lanham joined the Caruth Institute staff in September 2008 as the RATT Task Force program manager. She has been with the RATT program for 15 years and is a founding member of its staff.

RATT is one of 28 grant programs funded by the Texas Auto Burglary and Theft Prevention Authority (ABTPA), a division of the Texas Department of Motor Vehicles.

The primary objective of RATT is to decrease vehicle theft and burglary in the state by raising public awareness about the crimes among Texas drivers as well as educating members of law enforcement and organizations concerned with vehicle crimes about services and materials available through the ABTPA.

"The Reduce Auto Theft in Texas program has been an invaluable asset in raising public awareness and addressing automobile thefts," said Dallas Police Deputy Chief Randy Blankenbaker.

"Since 1993 there has been a 60 percent reduction in auto thefts statewide, a decline that could not have been accomplished without the contribution of this innovative program. The Dallas Police Department is proud to work hand in hand with program officials to reduce auto-related crimes in Texas. Congratulations to the University of North Texas at Dallas, the Caruth Police Institute and the program's administrators and staff for winning this prestigious award."

Richard Smith, interim executive director of the Caruth Police Institute, said he was "very proud that our Reduce Auto Theft in Texas staff was recognized for their outstanding work by the Texas Chisholm Trail Crime Prevention Association.

"Michelle and Katheryn are dedicated to making our community safer by providing practical information to residents and visitors on how to protect themselves from auto theft and auto burglary. Their good work has touched the lives of thousands of people in Dallas and throughout the North Texas region. We are very thankful they are on our team," Smith said.

Agitation over the removal of the n-word from Huck Finn

By H. Lewis Smith

The removal of the n-word from Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn has caused complete outrage, shock, and outcries of sorts all across the American landscape. If the term is removed from historical texts, which were written during and work to convey the reality of the times - depicting the distorted face and broken planes of America's overall past psyche, how can we expect children to learn real history, and hence, the meaning and importance of societal progress, if it is sanitized or veiled...resonates from the voices of the malcontent.

I agree with those who are concerned about history being distorted and sanitized, but my concerns extend far beyond Huckleberry Finn. As belated scholar Dr. Asa Hilliard would constantly say about present day historical literature, "We have a truth problem." Indeed we do! The effort should not be to erase the past, but to embrace it - in all its good and bad - and learn from it, leaving the negative aspects in the past, not erasing them.

The effort should be to show our current generations the ignorance that was acted out in the past, the sickness the use of the n-word bores in all, and how to effectively proceed today by eradicating the n-word from their use. The truth in history is suppose to make us stronger and serve as a fundamental building block for improvement, however, when one looks at Hip Hop culture, the opposite is manifested.

The truth of the matter is that when it comes to slavery and the n-word, history has ALWAYS been sanitized and distorted in efforts to lighten the deliberate blows of hate, hostility and genocide that were carried out against blacks. It's as if the historians are saying slavery was bad, but not that bad. Honestly, it is somewhat an irreverence to be sanctimonious about the removal of the n-word from Huck Finn and fail to exhibit the same concerns about American history overall.

In the time when Mark Twain wrote the classic, slaves were not perceived as having the same human qualities as whites. Even though "n**ger" has always been used as a derogatory term, it became so commonly accepted that it was used synonymously with the word "slave" or just common reference to blacks. As such, it rolled just as easily off the tongue of Jim as it did of Huck and society in general.

Just as with today's contemporary blacks, the n-word rolls off the tongues of many rather easily and effortlessly. However, the problem is that blacks tend to forget or downplay the original meaning of the n-word as it applied to their ancestors. A "n**ger" was looked upon as lacking human qualities, 3/5 of a person, sub-human and a bestial savage beast who needed to be tamed. N**ger was symbolized as something inferior to the rest of humankind, a place where anyone of black origin belonged. Hence the phrase, don't forget your place, n**ger. Black African Americans who embraces the term makes a mockery of the sacred memories, struggles and sacrifices of their dearly beloved ancestry.

"The effort should not be to erase the past, but to embrace it - in all its good and bad - and learn from it, leaving the negative aspects in the past, not erasing them."

To be succinct, mentally and emotionally scarred descendants of slavery are so severely psychologically disturbed that they have become immune to the idea of debasing themselves and think nothing of defining themselves with a word that is drenched in ignorance, death, terror and bloodshed. Excuses that are being tendered, otherwise, serves as testimony of a lack of intestinal fortitude to deal with reality.

As irony would have it, Mark Twain illustrates a point that a truly free person would never want to wear the name given to him by someone who hates him. And I repeat - a TRULY free person - which is very significant. A point seemingly lost upon today's black users of the pejorative term and those who condone such use.

Many rap artists like Jay-Z, Lil Wayne, Soulja Boy and a host of others use the word in their music to supposedly entertain their audiences. Their songs may seem harmless because they use the word in a context of camaraderie and friendship. However, there are inherent and chilling similarities to the self-destructive messages in gangsta rap and the indoctrination techniques used in the days of chattel slavery to corrupt the minds of an enslaved race of people.

The founder of BET made a fortune by spreading a culture of gangster rap, with its glorification of violence, denigration of women, saggin' pants, use of the n-word and the perpetuation of a dysfunctional vocabulary that all but ensured that countless young Black people will never be able to get through a job interview. Not a murmur of concern erupted from the Black community; the n-word is removed from Huck Finn and the floodgate opens up denouncing the dismissal of the incorrigible term; this goes beyond the comprehension of logic.

The Huckleberry Finn "n-word" episode pales in comparison to perhaps the most blatant distortion and sanitization of history. Much about the n-word's sinister history has been suppressed and erased from the academic approved history books limiting at least 95% of contemporary Americans' knowledge of the word as being nothing more than a racial slur, to demean, degrade and insult. N**ga which is a ghetto vernacular for n**ger is so stigmatized that trying to re-define it suggests that all the death, terror, bloodshed and mental abuse associated with it never happened. But the fact is it did. Hip hop culture serves as a shining example of what happens when one is left in the dark about their history, a history that has been sanitized and distorted.

He who forgets the past is doomed to repeat it. There was not only a physical enslavement of a people, but the aspect regarding the barbaric and brutal methods used to MENTALLY enslave them as well, has been whitewashed, sanitized and virtually expunged from the teachings of American history. Where is the outcry and concern? Does it need to be pointed out that mental enslavement is the worst form of slavery?

Millions of Black African Americans - men, women, AND children - were viciously beaten, raped, castrated and/or murdered and categorizing them as n**gers in some twisted way was suppose to make all committed acts okay. Clearly, a 300-year African-American Holocaust took place and yet the term is not being used anywhere in American History; there has been no out break of hysteria, remove the n-word from Huck Finn and you would think the sky is falling. The hypocrisy of it all is asphyxiating.

There is a blanket of sorts enveloping certain aspects of slavery and the n-word with the blessings of both black and white America simply because they can't handle the pain of it all. This quandary makes it even more paramount to understand the pain that black children, whenever grossly outnumbered in a classroom, are experiencing - having to suffer through a reading of Huck Finn, and how unfair it is to subject them to such an ordeal. Why is it that so many Black African Americans are willing to sacrifice their very own in their anxiety to preserve and protect their use of the scurrilous n-word (n**ga)?

CRL: Wall Street created toxic mortgage market

By Charlene Crowell

As the 112th Congress begins and new committees are formed, our nation's marathon housing crisis seems far from over and no sure cures to its billion-dollar economic effects have been identified. In the meantime, agencies and laws intended to expand affordable housing nationwide have now come under attack. So-called 'risky borrowers', the Community Reinvestment Act and two government-sponsored enterprises, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, have all been accused of creating the lengthy downturn in housing and more than 2.5 million foreclosures.

Even a long-awaited report from the Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission, presidential appointees charged to provide an objective and thorough review of the still-unfolding dilemma sharply split along partisan lines as to the causes and effects of the economic crisis.

But according to the Center for Responsible Lending (CRL), an independent and nonpartisan research and policy organization, the culprits and leaders in the still-unfolding foreclosure crisis were clearly Wall Street firms that "securitized" subprime mortgages. A CRL Capitol Hill brief summarizes the findings. As Wall Street securitizers expanded the subprime market, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac's market share diminished substantially. GSE losses were caused not by risky borrowers but by risky loans, frequently loans that went to borrowers with relatively higher incomes.

In part, the new brief advises, "It's well known that toxic subprime loans started the foreclosure crisis, and the disaster spread to other mortgages approved without properly qualifying borrowers. The facts show that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac were followers, not leaders in the events leading up to today's foreclosure epidemic."

'Securitization', the process of bundling thousands of mortgage loans into investment pools and then re-selling pieces to investors enabled loosely-regulated lenders, says CRL, to make loans and then quickly sell them to private firms that created mortgage-backed securities.

CRL also refutes widespread charges of risky borrowers and Community Reinvestment Act loans as causes for the still-unfolding housing crisis. The truth is that 94 percent of subprime mortgage loans were made by institutions not covered by CRA.

"Mortgage loans purchased by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac – including loans to lower-income borrowers – are performing better than the private market. As of June 2010, 13.35 percent of GSE loans to borrowers with credit scores under 660 were 90+ days delinquent or in foreclosure. By comparison, the Mortgage Bankers Association reports that the serious delinquency rate for subprime loans was over 28 percent", says CRL.

To read the full CRL Capitol Hill issue brief, visit: <http://www.responsiblelending.org/mortgage-lending/policy-legislation/congress/wall-street-not-fannie-mae.html>

Lawmakers would be well-advised to focus on the facts and to seek sustainable answers instead of new villains. Before the housing bubble burst, modest increases in African-American homeownership were achieved. Now, the effects of the extended housing crisis have erased those same gains.

According to the Center for American Progress, in the third quarter of 2010, the homeownership rate for African Americans was 45.0 percent. The homeownership rate for Latinos was 47.0 percent, and the homeownership rate for whites was 74.7 percent.

Further, as the national unemployment rate hovers near 10 percent, communities of color are suffering more. The unemployment rate for African Americans was 15.8 percent in the fourth quarter of 2010, compared to 12.9 percent for Latinos, 7.3 percent for Asian Americans, and 8.7 percent for whites, also according to the Center for American Progress.

What all Americans need – regardless of race or ethnicity – are solutions to shared problems, access to fair lending, and reasonable, transparent terms for all lending products.

Somebody should deliver that message to Congress.

international donor nations to make good on their promises to help to Haiti?

Indeed, there is very little coordination of the aid to Haiti. The Interim Commission tasked to coordinate and assure transparency of donations has been nearly silent. There is no central NGO leadership to create a coordinated effort that will assure that there is at least clean water, decent sanitation and proper housing. We all have hope for Haiti's future. And yet, Haiti's present is still at risk.

and declared for "Emancipation or Extermination". Yes, there were Black newspapers during slavery - since March 16, 1827.

The Weekly Anglo-African, April 13th, 1861 heralded: "Better be a DEAD MAN, than a live slave! Better to die fighting, than to live to breed children for the shambles! Death slays only the body; the spirit, [disenthralled], will pass on, working out its immortal destiny. Rather say we, 'Ten Reigns of Terror' than one year of bondage! Better a thousand guillotines, than one fugitive returned. 'let the Union go to pieces, if the slaves go free'".

Black leaders faced the reality and inevitability of the consequence of the coming sectional conflict with resolution, while white leaders were in denial of the unions transformation and the certain demise in the preservation of slavery. Frederick Douglass editorialized in his Douglass Monthly on May, 1861, just one month after the start of the war: "God be praised! That it has come at last. We should have been glad if the North, of its own proper virtue, had given this quietis to doubt and vacillation. She [the Union], did not do it, and perhaps it is best that she [the Union], did not. What her negative wisdom withheld, has now come to us through the vengeance and rashness of slaveholders. Another instance of the wrath of man working out the purposes in praise of eternal goodness!"

Free and Enslaved Blacks transformed a Civil War for reunion into a war for liberation. It would take five years of fratricidal conflict for White America to arrive at the meaning of the war that was clear to Black America at its beginning - the reaffirmation of the founding universal human principle of America that all men are created equal.

"This [the Civil War] is but another step in the drama of American progress. We say progress, for we know that no matter what may be the desires of the men of Expediency who rule, or seem to, the affairs of the North, the tendencies are for Liberty. God speed the conflict. The strife will be deadly, but the end is certain. It matters not whether the government is successful, whether the union is preserved, the ideas underlying the struggle will triumph", Weekly Anglo-African, April 20th, 1861.

April 12, 2011 will mark the 150th Anniversary of the firing on Ft. Sumter and the start of the American Civil War. The African American Civil War Memorial Foundation will commemorate the beginning Civil War with celebrities reading from Civil War period newspapers, speeches, and other documents announcing the coming of the war and its profound effect on the ending of slavery in America. We will also have celebrities read from selected press responses to the election of President Lincoln and the anti-slavery platform of the Republican party of 1860.

The African American Civil War Memorial lists the names of 209,145 Black union soldiers who joined President Lincoln to save the Union and keep it united under one flag. The monument, located at the corner of 10th and U Streets NW Washington, D. C., was built by a private foundation that operates a museum. On July 18, 2011 the museum will host a Grand Opening for its newly renovated 5,000 sq.

THE UN-COMFORT ZONE: More Powerful than You Know

By Robert Evans Wilson, Jr.
"Writing is not a job; it's a hobby!" thundered my father when I told him my plans for college. "You need to get a profession: medicine, law, engineering or accounting."

I cheerlessly acquiesced and enrolled in a Pre-Med program, but at the end of my first year, after struggling through Chemistry, I changed my major to Philosophy. When I told Dad, he grunted, "That and fifty cents will get you a cup of coffee." He passed away shortly after that but his words echoed in the back of my mind for years.

After graduation I searched for a job in writing. At the same time, I wrote short stories like crazy, and sent them off to dozens of magazines. Years passed and I failed to find a job in writing, so I supported myself by waiting tables and bartending. Meanwhile, rejection letters from the magazines began piling up, and I was beginning to get discouraged.

Then one day, I met a friend for a beer in a bar near the campus of my alma mater. When I visited the restroom, some graffiti written on the wall with an arrow pointing to the toilet paper dispenser caught my eye. It read: "Bachelor of Arts Degrees - take only one, please!" Rather than laugh, I grimaced and thought, "Boy, does that sound like my

Texas Back to Work Secures Jobs for 10,000 Texans

(NDG Wire) Texas Back to Work has exceeded a goal by helping more than 10,000 individuals find employment, the Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) announced today. Funded by the 81st Texas Legislature and supported by Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, the initiative provided up to $2,000 in wage subsidies to Texas employers per qualified new-hire employee. Qualified individuals included those who were receiving or had received Unemployment Insurance benefits within the last year.

"I'm pleased that this innovative program is helping so many Texans get back to work," said Lt. Gov. Dewhurst. "Texas Back to Work is providing job opportunities, income and training for thousands of newly hired employees. It is also helping small businesses and saving Texas taxpayers money in the process."

To date, 10,158 individuals have secured jobs with 2,721 employers who have received wage subsidies for hiring qualified out-of-work Texans.

"Texas Back to Work enables thousands of businesses to hire workers whom they might not have been able to employ otherwise during this difficult economic time," said TWC Chairman Tom Pauken. "This TWC initiative succeeds by partnering employers with qualified workers."

Employers can still sign up for Texas Back to Work by contacting their local workforce development board. Local contact information is available at <http://www.twc.state.tx.us/svcs/txback2work/txback2work.html>. TWC's 28 local workforce development boards provide employers with workforce recruitment assistance, pre-screening of qualified applicants and training programs. More than 1.8 million customers were served in more than 245 workforce centers across Texas last year.

Employers also are encouraged to take advantage of WorkInTexas.com, TWC's online job-matching website where more than 250,000 employers already are registered to post job openings and find great employees. Visit WorkInTexas at <http://www.twc.state.tx.us/jobs/job.html>

Dad." Five years had gone by, and other than a few freelance jobs writing advertising copy, I had not made a penny from writing. I was beginning to re-think my life, when I recalled the encouraging words from my ninth grade English teacher.

She had assigned my class with several essays to write. I remembered the glowing paragraphs of praise she wrote in bright red ink at the top of all my papers. There must have been a dozen of those compositions, and just recalling them gave me hope. I thought, "At least one person in the world believes in my writing."

It was just the encouragement I needed, and I doubled my efforts to find work. Soon I was getting a great deal more freelance work. Enough that I was able to quit working in restaurants. Enough to make a down payment on a house. Then whenever I needed a boost in confidence, I would think again of those dozen glowing paragraphs of praise written in bright red ink at the top of my essay papers.

Suddenly everything seemed to gel. I sold my first book; I won several very important advertising awards; and three colleges were asking me to teach a class in copywriting. I was feeling very grateful and once again thought of my ninth grade English teacher and those glowing paragraphs of praise written in bright red ink. I decided to look her up and give her a call.

When I got her on the phone my first shock was that she did not remember me. I was certain I had been one of her favorites. My second was when she told me that she never wrote paragraphs of praise. "There were simply too many papers to grade to write more than a word or two," she said. "I would write 'Nice Work' or 'Good Job,' but never anything more."

Unconvinced, when I got off the phone, I went up to the attic and dug out the box that held my old school work (yes, it's true - I'm a total pack rat - especially when it comes to things I've written!). It took a while, but I finally found those old papers. She was right; there were no paragraphs. And, there was far less than a dozen - only two. About the only thing I remembered correctly was the bright red ink. I did, however, rate more than one or two words. On the first one she wrote, "Nicely written - well thought out." On the other, "Good Sense of Humor!"

Nine words. Nine little words that were so heartening that over the next 15 years they grew into hundreds in my mind. Nine words that motivated me to stick to my dreams. My point? Even the least bit of praise can be powerfully motivating. So, don't keep it in - use your power!

This is the start of Black History Month; again I will highlight some facts and accomplishments of African Americans. Some will be ones that are most requested and talked about from past years. Some readers have mentioned that they had learned a lot of Black History facts from reading my columns during the month of February.

It is my strong belief that as we honor the accomplishments of African Americans world-wide, we honor God and our ancestors. Too many of our Black children have forgotten or have never been taught that they are where they are in life because of our ancestors. Our ancestors suffered, prayed, honored God, endured many hardships and died so that future generations' lives would be better. Many young Black children (and, I am sad to say, some older Black people also) have the misconception that it is not necessary to honor the accomplishments of Black Americans that have made a huge difference world-wide. They wrongly believe and have said so, we have gotten over that part of history in America, and we have overcome. Let us not forget to honor and thank older Black Americans, especially this time of the year. Listen to what they have to say (over the years they have learned many things that will be helpful to young Black children, if they are willing to learn).

Little Known Black History Facts

(By Tom Joyner, Renowned Radio Personality and Dr. Henry L. Gates, Writer. These facts are published by McDonald's Corporation. Copyright 2000)

Since the "Entertainment World" is all a buzzed about The Oscars, and how many nominations there are in each category, and speculating who will win what, I thought that it is good to know that Maya Angelou was the first Black woman to have a screenplay produced, "Georgia, Georgia," which she also directed. In 1970, she was the first Black woman to have a non-fiction book on The New York Times Best Seller List, it was the first volume of her autobiography, I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings. And she was the first Black woman to be a conductor on a San Francisco streetcar. The Harlem Renaissance was a flowering of African American creativity that exploded in America in the 1920's. Langston Hughes (a postal stamp was made to honor Hughes) and Countee Cullen wrote poems, Nella Larsen and Jean Toomer wrote novels, and Zora Neale Hurston wrote about Black folk life. Aaron Douglas painted extraordinary pictures, and sculptor Augusta Savage turned stones into portraits. Broadway was open to Black musical theater with zestful singing, dancing, and comedy. The whole country was moving to the rhythm of a Black dance called the "Charleston." In politics, Marcus Garvey was calling for Black self-reliance and identification with African heritage. W.E.B. Du Bois was fighting against segregation and for civil rights for people of color. This much energy, talent, and creativity infused the whole nation with a unique new vigor and originality.

Reading this column today, it is good to know that The Stone Churches of Lalibela in Ethiopia are one of the architectural wonders of the world. A group of eleven buildings, they are hewn from volcanic rock. But they are not carved from stone standing above ground. Astonishingly, they were cut into the earth, so that what one first sees is their roofs—level to the ground. It is said that the churches date from the twelfth century. Their original purpose is unknown, but the network of underground passages suggests they could have been either palaces or fortifications. The religious tradition is that they were built by angels in one night during the reign of King Lalibela, one of the early members of the Zagwe Dynasty. They now house Ethiopian Orthodox monks and a collection of Christian art treasures. Samuel Cornish, he founded the first African American newspaper, "Freedom's Journal." The first issue appeared on March 16, 1827 with a strong civil rights stand. With world-wide use of our cell phones, it is good to know that Henry T. Sampson invented the Cellular Phone on July 6, 1971.

pastors talking about pornography and sexual addictions, what Gross calls the "elephant in the pew."

"We're using the visual of an elephant because porn is an issue that needs to be discussed but that the church usually avoids," he said. "This is a problem in the church that cannot be hidden any longer."

The heart of the Porn Sunday service will be a 35-minute video featuring a message from Gross and the personal stories of several current or former National Football League players, including quarterbacks Matt Hasselbeck of the Seattle Seahawks, Jon Kitna of the Dallas Cowboys and Josh McCown, who has been on five NFL teams but most recently played for the Hartford Colonials of the United Football League.

Research shows the average child first sees pornography at age 11. For this reason, Gross has designed the Porn Sunday service to be appropriate for children of middle school age and up.

Gross and the XXXchurch team will be in Dallas the week leading up to the Super Bowl. They will appear at a service at 11 a.m. CT Feb. 6 hosted by Presence Church at the Addison Conference Center at 15650 Addison Road.

This year, reflecting the international nature of the problem, churches from every continent except Antarctica are participating in Porn Sunday. The list of participating churches can be found at <http://www.porn-sunday.com>.

MODERN BLACK HISTORY HEROES -

Premieres Tuesday, Feb. 1 at 5 p.m. on BET. BET NEWS, in partnership with 106 & PARK, brings us MODERN BLACK HISTORY HEROES, a conversation with four African-Americans leaders from various walks of life making black history today. Each week 106 & PARK will introduce viewers to one of our modern day heroes and invite the audience to submit their own modern black history hero and acknowledge African-Americans making a difference in local communities.

BET.COM PRESENTS BLACK IN TIME - Every day during the month of Feb., BET.COM will post video narratives of civil rights leaders. From Medgar Evers and the march on Washington to the legendary Tuskegee Airmen, BET will pay tribute to 28 moments that pushed the civil rights movement forward and redefined our nation.

OBAMA IN GHANA - Premieres Sunday, Feb. 20 at 9 p.m. on CENTRIC. This engaging documentary chronicles the first family's historic trip to the Republic of Ghana, Africa's first nation to gain independence from colonial rule. Viewers see the first family's emotional visit to Ghana's slave dungeons on the cape coast, as well as a special pageant of traditional chiefs in honor of President Obama.

"CADILLAC RECORDS" - Premieres Sunday, Feb. 27 at 4:30 p.m. on BET.

SHAKA ZULU - Premieres Saturday, Feb. 5 at 11 a.m.* on CENTRIC. This sweeping 1986 miniseries captures the rise and fall of an African emperor with brilliant detail. Prophecy is mixed with recorded fact regarding Shaka's birth, exile, innovations in warfare, assumption of the throne, building of the Zulu Empire, first contact with Europe and the events that led to his downfall. Powerful performances by Cele and Dudu Mkhize (as Shaka's iron-willed mother, Nandi) give this sprawling epic the drive and emotional scope of a Shakespearean drama. It was a pop culture phenomena when originally aired in 1986.

THE COSBY SHOW: A LOOK BACK - Premieres Saturday, Feb. 26 at 7:00 p.m.* on CENTRIC. Honoring the first family of black television, the Cosbys, our retrospective of the phenomenally popular 1984-1992 family comedy, THE COSBY SHOW comes complete with memorable clips, bloopers and comments from series stars, producers and Bill Cosby himself.
