You may remember Anima Farm, the 1945 class written by George Orwell. Many in my generals the hard to read the book in high achool. Over the years, I have come to see the relevance of the metage in Animal Farm, even more as I look at the companied of the works of the metage in Animal Farm, even more as I look at the companied of Orwell's book. I plan to write an dition of our people.

The book is centered on the dissatisfaction of farm animals who felt they were being mistreated by Farmer Jones. Led by the pigs, the animals revolted against their human masters, and after their victory, they decide to run the farm themselves on egalizatithey decide to tun to that man the same an principles. The pigs become corrupted by power and a new tyranny is established. That famous line, "All animals are equal, but some animals are more equal than others" still rings true, even among Black people.

On Saturday, the Rev, Jesse Jackson, St. will lead a commemoration of the 40th anniversary of the signing of the Voting Rights Act in Adatnat. It is related to make the word was signing of the Voting Rights Act in Adatnat. It is related to the history of African-Americans as a validation of their struggle for citizenship and because we cannot depend upon other institutions to education our own about our successes and where we have to go next. Most important, it is vital to remember that civil rights laws such as the Voting Rights Act represent something that Blacks and their alikes who believed in justice created. It was not a grant of government, but an act of self determination by people who believed in the fulfillment of the promises of American democracy. Nor did they believe that the status of citizenship alone would give them the power they nator Royce West, D-Dallas Senator Royce West, D-Dallas spoke to members of the state's African American press last week and gave his views on the state school finance crisis. He expressed that a $500 allocation for health benefits given to school auxilliary workers in 2001 is being looked at to be taken away and looked at to be taken away and given to the teachers. "That's just not fair," said Senator West. "There at least has to be a transitional plan." He also said that teacher pay increases are good especially for minority students as it will attract the best and brightest of them to become teachers.

The issue of tax re-structure to finance the school system is also at the center of the debate. The Recapture (also known as Robin Hood) system has been called Hood) system has been called unconstitutional and has to be replaced, and if the Texas Legislature cannot reach an agreement soon, it is feared that The Texas Supreme Court will decide its fate.

Under the tax re-structure, a Insues at traind are teacher pay

The Ridiculousness of Racial Profiling

By: Hussein Ibish - Vice hairman of the Progressive tuslim Union The attacks on the London mass-transport system and the random searches now in place on the New York City subways have again raised the issue of racial profiling against Arab-Americans and Muslims. The New York Police Department insists that the searches will be just that-ran-dom-and one should presume that its officers will hold to that standard.

Those who urge the govern-ment to ask officers enforcing security policies like New York's random searches to engage in profiling of Arab-Americans-and Muslims based on appear-ance are not only advocating something degrading and oointless-they are asking for the impossible.

Leaving aside the fact that more than half of the Arabs in the United States are Christians, Arabs simply do not possess to any set of physical characteristics that either plainly bind them together or set them apart from many other American communities.

Arabs are a very diverse ethnic group who can resemble almost any group of southern Europeans, Latin Americans, Central and South Asians or Africans

Even more preposterous uld be any attempt to identi-Even fy Muslims by appearance, as Muslims come from almost every part of the world, and constitute one-fifth of humani-ty. And, because about one-third of American Muslims are African-Americans, any futile attempt at profiling of Muslims, especially in urban areas such as New York City, will immedi-

Not that all the London bombers were of Pakistani ori-gins—the fourth was Jamaican.

Demagogues who call for pro-filing, and even across-the-board discrimination, against American Muslims should acknowledge that in practice this could not be based on appearances or names.

It would probably require Americans to be categorized by, or register their faith with, the government, and carry identity documents confirming their offiral religious designation.

How else to distinguish Arab

Muslims and Christians, Hindu and Muslim South Asians, Muslims and Christians of African origin and so forth?

Even if it were possible to profile Arabs or Muslims by sight, or if they were forced to can something equivalent to a yello star to be produced on demand, the effect would still be to create an impossibly wide pool of sus-pects and distract attention from behavioral and other contingent factors that may point to a notential threat.

Worse than useless, such approaches would drain based on a supposedly neutral, secret computer profiling sys-tem, from 1996 to Sept. 11, 2001, the evidence strongly suggested that it resulted in widespread discrimination ers, but it did not prevent the Sept. 11 attacks.

The intensified post-Sept. 11 airport security regime has been both more thorough and more equitable. There was more evidence of discrimina tion against Arabs and Muslims in domestic air travel before Sept. 11 than after, precisely because the govern became committed to provid-

The government seems to be learning that serious security threats require policies that do not boil down to crude stereotypes or rely on subjective judgments about ethnicity

While you ponder that thought we would like to announce that Minority Opportunity News, Inc., formerly a Dallas based renaissance community tabloid, founded in 1991, has relocated to Plano, Texas and changed our name to MON-The Gazette. In addition to moving our offices to Plano, our editorial coverage has also shifted to encompase Dallas' Northern Corridor. The Northern Corridor is clearly the fastest growing region in Texas, if not in America. MON-The Gazette believes that the engine to continue this growth is the airport expansion in McKinney, which is the largest and most visible of many area opportunities. As always, and true to tradition, MON-The Gazette will be there carving a world of opportunity for those seeking to provide quality services. The mobilization's national leadership team participated in the meeting, including Reverend Willie Wilson, national secutive director; Leonard F Muhammad, national deputy director; Dr. Benjamin Chavis Muhammad, mobilization dir-ector; and Reverend Dr. Barbara ector; and Reverend Dr. Barbara Williams-Skinner, former execu-tive director of the CBC. "The Millions More Move-ment continues the Million Man March of several years ago, and it's critical," Rep. John Conyers (D-Mich.), the "Dean" of the CBC, told The Final Call. "Because from that experience, we now understand experience, we now understand more clearly than ever the importance of follow-through and organization, particularly after the march.

"It's much easier to have a successful march than it is to have the issues that are generated being worked on across the country and in Washington. I'm glad that Minister Farrakhan and his contingency were received with open arms by the Congressional Black Caucus," Rep. Conyers concluded.

The meeting took place one day after President George Bush nominated John Roberts to the U.S. Supreme Court and CBC members joined and CBC members jouned other concerned Black activists questioning Judge Roberts's commitment to civil rights and expressed concern that the nation's highest court could shift to the right. The Supreme Court's decisions determine U.S. policy or workers' rights, affirmative workers' rights, affirmative action, voting rights and edu-cation, and the CBC will care-fully evaluate the record of Judge Roberts in light of that history, said Chairman Watt.

Jaguar Wants Women To Get 'Wright': Singer Calls On Young Ladies In Music To Stop Demeaning Themselves

R&B singer Jaguar Wright is urging women to stop allowing themselves to be written off as sexual objects, "and in more graphic and demeaning ways than ever," she says in a commentary that appears in the Aug. 6 issue of Billboard magazine (on newsstands now).

In the piece, Wright rattles off a list of women she considered role models while growing up. Naming "Aretha Franklin, Janis Joplin, Tina Turner, Patti LaBelle, Gladys Knight, Nina Simone" and others, she says, "these were the women I was drawn to. Women who possessed power, poise, uncommon beauty and brash atti-

"What do we do now that they only want our bodies and not our souls?" Wright asks. "Now that they would rather see us on our knees in music videos than on our feet at live music venue?"

"That's a question we will all have to answer, sooner rather than later," tudes."

Wright continues: "I'm not saying their sexuality wasn't part of their sexuality wasn't part of their enough to make the right choices

In the absence of explicit information about criminal backgrounds," writes Holzer, employers "tend to avoid young black men in general."

The legal system poses yet another problem for the same young men in the form of child support orders. Most states today track down and garnish the wages of fathers who don't support their children. Holzer says a significant fraction of young black men – perhaps 25 percent – have fathered children they don't live with. Among black men 34, the percentage may be as high as 50 percent. For these men, child support orders have the same effect as a steep tax: They create a huge disincentive to work -- at least in the traditional econo

In an interview, Holzer said that many men fall behind in their child support payments while in prison and then get hit with court orders when they come out. "All the incen-tives are to go underground," he said.

Young black men have another issue: intensified com-petition in the labor market. In series of reports they have Northeastern University economists Andrew Sum and Paul Harrington have documented the success new immigrants have had in landing jobs. Since 2000, 3.7 million new immigrants those who arrived in the past those who arrived in the past five years -- have found employment. In low-wage jobs, immigrants have dis-placed young people of all races.

But young black men have been hit hardest, Sum said, because they compete most directly with immigrants for jobs at stores and fast-food restaurants, especially in siege and as such, the citizenship is far from complete.

My most recent book, Freedom is Not Elnough, (Rowman and Littlefield) was released last month to tell yet another story about why we have not achieved empowerment from the Black vote. We have not used the vote effectively as leverage to secure what Black communities need in public policy and material resources.

Blacks have not had their own political organization since the political organization since the Jackson campaigns and as a result they are weaker and more dependent on the Democratic Party and organized labor for Party and organized labor for their political resources. The message is obvious and clear, if someone else controls your vote, they get to use your power one way or another. Thus, I suggest that the way forward to greater empowerment is that Blacks truly own our opilitical resources, and challenge our politicians to find the courage to leverage them more effectively at all levels of government. See you in Adlanta.
