Community service is a family legacy for GISD Trustee

By Jackie Hardy NDG Contributing Writer

Garland Independent School District (GISD) is gearing up for its May 7 school board elections. Three seats are up for re-election: Places 2, 3 and 4. Garland ISD serves residents living in the Garland, Sachem, and Rowlett communities. According to the District's website, there are 58,000 students presently enrolled across its 71 campuses.

Incumbent, Linda Griffin of Garland is vying for the Place 3 seat. Griffin is running against opponent Jody Luna, also of Garland. But this is just the latest chapter of service Griffin has devoted to the Garland and Dallas communities.

Griffin is no stranger to public office as she has successfully held a Board of Trustee seat since 1998. Within her tenure, she has served as board president, vice president, and assistant secretary and is currently serving as board secretary.

In her 41 years as a Garland resident. Griffin is also known for her various community involvement and associations with faith-based, national and local charitable organizations.

"I was born into a family of community people. I saw everyone in my family care for everyone in the community-fed people, clothed people, housed people in the community. As a result of that, I have a love for people and especially a love for children," she adds.

The daughter of the late Joe and Helen Reed, her family instilled this love for community and service. It continued with her late husband, and now their son Reuben Lael Griffin, is picking up the mantel. For numerous years Reuben, a gospel music artist, has led the community Youth Choir for the Annual Martin Luther King celebration each January.

Griffin co-founded St. Mark Baptist Institutional Church in Garland along with her late husband. Dr. Roosevelt A. Griffin, where he served as pastor until his death in 2009. St. Mark honored Griffin in March of last year for her 33 years of service.

Although she is not one to seek acclaim, as a trailblazer, her walls and shelves are filled with honors. Leadership Service Award (Texas Association of School Board); Committee Chairman Award (Garland Chamber of Commerce); Leadership and Service Award (PTA Texas Caucus of Black School); and the Speak your Name Award (National Association of Business and Professional Women Garland Board of Trustee) are just a few of the honors Griffin has received throughout her tenure as a public servant.

Black America's unholy trinity: predatory lending, poverty and health

By Charlene Crowell

For more than a decade, state and local consumer advocates have challenged triple-digit interest rates on small-dollar loans like payday and car-title. To their combined credit, 14 states and the District of Columbia have enacted laws to limit interest and fees to about 36 percent.

Despite these successful efforts however, the vast majority of the nation still lacks state regulation to protect consumers from predatory lending's debt trap. Consumers of color and those of modest means who need just a few hundred dollars are often the financial prey that payday lenders love. Now a diverse coalition of Christian leaders are proclaiming that payday lending is not just a legal problem, but a moral one as well. The group also has new data that broadly and consistently supports payday and car-title re-

Andres Correa

Andres Correa, an attorney at Lynn Pinker Cox & Hurst and Fellow with the LatinoCLD's Leadership Academy, was honored by his peers as a "2016 Texas Rising Star" by Super Lawyers magazine (as published in Texas monthly). A trial attorney who focuses on business litigation, Andres is licensed to practice law in New York and Texas, and is admitted to practice before the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Andres attended college

thanks to Texas House Bill 1403 - the 2001 law permitting certain undocumented immigrants and long-term visa-holders who were raised in Texas to attend college while paying in-state tuition. Through pushing for its passage in the state legislature, Andres drew the attention of administrators at the University of Texas at Dallas who ultimately selected him for the McDermott scholarship. Today, Andres has represented multi-national corporations, small businesses, nonprofits and cities in various types of disputes involving breach of contract action. He also volunteers to provide pro-bono legal assistance.

"My success as a business litigator stems from the educational opportunities I was given by this country," said Correa. "The Texas law is the only reason college became affordable. I have been blessed with an immigration experience that resulted in rewarding educational and professional opportunities. Now, I feel the need to ensure that I contribute to extending those same, quintessentially American opportunities to all who seek them."

Born in Santiago, Chile, Andres immigrated to New Orleans and ultimately to Dallas, where he attended the University of Texas at Dallas as part of the inaugural class of the Eugene McDermott Scholars Program. He earned his law degree, cum laude, from New York University School of Law, where he served as an Articles Editor on the Law Review, a termtime clerk for the Honorable Richard J. Holwell, Co-Chair of the Latino Law Students Association, and President of the Mock Trial Team.

"Andres is a bright young lawyer who represents what's achievable through access to higher education," said Jorge Baldor, LatinoCLD Founder. "Our success as a state depends on whether we invest in the talent within our communities so that they may reach their fullest potential. His story proves that Texas' law on in-state tuition is working for our communities and our state."

Andres is a part of the LatinoCLD's inaugural Leadership Academy class - a leadership training program for promising leaders interested in serving their community through policy roles and elected office. He cofounded and presided over the Eugene McDermott Scholars Alumni Association, which won UT Dallas' Green and Orange Award for Alumni Service. He currently chairs its Community Service Grants Committee. Andres is a partner at SVP Dallas, which provides support to promising Dallas-area nonprofits, and is a member of the UT Chancellor's Centurions Council, which provides advice and counsel to the UT System Chancellor.

The Dallas Foundation Board of Governors elected James "Jim" M. Moroney III as chairman and also welcomed four new members at its annual meeting in March. Mary K. Suhm, Dr. Joan Buchanan Hill, Lydia Addy and Elizabeth Horchow Routman began serving their board terms immediately. The Board guides the work of The Dallas Foundation, the state's oldest community foundation, which manages over $300 million in assets and awarded about $56 million in grants in 2015.

"We are thrilled to have such depth of community experience on our board," said Mary M. Jalonick, president and CEO of The Dallas Foundation. "Our new governors bring a mix of expertise that will make us even more effective and innovative as we work to improve the quality of life in North Texas."

James "Jim" M. Moroney III is the chairman, president and Chief Executive Officer of A. H. Belo Corporation and publisher and Chief Executive Officer of The Dallas Morning News. He joined The Dallas Foundation Board of Governors in 2010. He also serves on the boards of the Associated Press, the International News Media Association (INMA) and the State Fair of Texas. Moroney has an MBA from The University of Texas at Austin and a degree in American Studies from Stanford University.

Dr. Joan Buchanan Hill is Head of School for The Lamplighter School in Dallas, a private, nonsectarian elementary school that enrolls approximately 450 students in pre-K through fourth grade. Before coming to Dallas, Dr. Hill was Lower School Director at Columbus School for Girls in Columbus, Ohio. She has a doctorate in education from the University of Pennsylvania with an emphasis in educational leadership. She serves on several national and local boards, including the National Association of Independent Schools, the Dallas Arboretum and the Perot

Former Dallas City Manager Mary K. Suhm has won numerous awards for her leadership in the public sector. She started a threedecade career with the City of Dallas as a branch librarian and finished as its chief executive, managing about 13,000 employees and a budget of $3 billion. As city manager, Suhm focused on strategic investments, such as the Margaret Hunt Hill Bridge, the Pavaho Pump Station and Klyde Warren Park, that enhance the city's cultural life and its tax base. She is an independent consultant and serves on several local boards, including the Perot Museum of Nature and Science, Children's Health and the Dallas Historical Society.

Two governors, Anne Motsenbocker and Carol R. Levy, retired from the board in March after serving six years each. J. Puckett, the Foundation's former chairman, will continue to serve for another year as Immediate Past Chairman.

Founded in 1929, The Dallas Foundation is a public charity that works to improve life in North Texas by bringing together generous donors and effective nonprofits.

Lester Holt

Lester Holt, anchor of 'NBC Nightly News with Lester Holt,' has been selected as the 2016 Journalist of the Year by the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ).

The annual award recognizes a black journalist who has distinguished himself or herself with a body of work that has extraordinary depth, scope and significance to people in the African Diaspora.

Holt was named the permanent anchor of NBC Nightly News in June 2015. The promotion made him the first black solo anchor at a flagship newscast of a major American television network. Since assuming the role, he has helped NBC

Nightly News maintain its ranking as the mostwatched evening news program. He also continues as the anchor of "Dateline NBC," the network's signature newsmagazine and longest-running show in primetime.

As anchor, Holt has traveled across the world anchoring and reporting. He anchored from Paris following the Charlie Hebdo massacre on January 7, 2015, that killed 12 and was on site after a series of terrorist attacks on November 13, clusive interview with one of the commanders of the SWAT team that took down the terrorists inside Paris' Bataclan Theater.

He reported for "The Today Show" and anchored nightly from Havana as President Barack Obama made his historic trip to Cuba. He has also led NBC's political coverage by interviewing candidates, leading Super Tuesday primary coverage and moderating the NBC News and YouTube Democratic de-years, Holt joined NBC in 2000 as an anchor for MSNBC. He later began anchoring the weekend editions of "The Today Show" and NBC Nightly News before his current roles. Holt also reported and anchored at the CBS owned-and-operated stations in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago, which earned him several Emmy Awards and a Robert Kennedy Journalism Award.

Holt will be recognized at the association's Annual Convention and Career Fair, Aug. 3-7, in Washington, D.C. The NABJ Special Honors recognize the best journalism that addressed issues affecting the black community in 2015.

Black women won't celebrate Equal Pay Day until August 1

By Julianne Malveaux NNPA Columnist

The Sewall-Belmont House is located at the National Women's Party in Washington D.C. It is one of the oldest houses near the United States Capitol, and was the house where Alice Paul wrote the 19th Amendment that granted women the right to vote. On April 12, form across 30 states where no current regulation exists.

'Faith for Just Lending', the official title of the faithbased coalition, released new poll results this week from interviews of 1,000 Christians. The survey found that Blacks are the most likely to know someone who has borrowed a payday loan (58 percent) or have borrowed one themselves (49 percent). Nearly a third of clergy and service providers (35 percent) who know consumers with payday or car title loans had provided money to help pay off or refinance payday or car title debt.

"Communities already suffering due to economic inequities are falling prey to these financial predators," noted Rev. Dr. Cassandra Gould, a coalition member with Missouri Faith Voices and also the PICO National Network. "As a pastor, I have become aware of the cycle of shame . . . The real culprits are these unregulated profiteers who are extracting wealth from families. They are contributing to the poor health of communities and individuals."

Further findings reveal: • Nearly 90 percent of respondents felt payday loans "mostly hurt" borrowers;

• 84 percent witnessed an increased need for emergency assistance after a

Parkland urges awareness, prevention of childhood sexual assault

The National Sexual Violence Resource Center has designated April as National Sexual Assault Awareness month in recognition of the widespread prevalence of sexual assault nationwide. Sexual assault, including childhood sexual abuse, is an underreported crime. What often is overlooked, according to Melissa Reilly, Director of the Victim Intervention Program (VIP)/ Rape Crisis Center at Parkland Health & Hospital System, is how extensively sexual assault impacts a person's physical, emotional and social functioning.

Health

"Sexual violence including child sexual abuse—crosses all ages, genders, races, ethnicities, and economic backgrounds. Children are not immune from this type of assault," Reilly said. "Sexual assault continues to be a severely underreported crime. It's estimated that less than 10 percent of victims report their experience to the police."

In 2014 in the Lone Star State, more than 413,000 sexual assault crimes were reported. "In Texas, one in four girls and one in six boys will be sexually abused before their 18th birthday," Reilly stated.

Every person who walks in the door at Parkland is screened for abuse, whether it's physical, sexual or emotional. Parkland's VIP/Rape Crisis Center offers support to children, teens, adults and families by providing free counseling, 24-hour response for victims seen at Parkland facilities, and help finding emergency shelters, legal assistance and other services. Spanish-speaking staff is available and services in other languages are offered through interpreters.

"At Parkland, we address the medical, social and emotional needs of a sexual assault survivor. This comprehensive approach assists the patient in his/her recovery following the assault," Reilly said. "After a sexual assault, victims experience different emotions including fear and depression, notice changes in their behaviors and often feel disconnected as they have difficulty trusting others."

In addition to psychological and social impacts, sexual abuse often leads to medical problems for victims which are often overlooked. A 2015 report titled "Health and Well-Being: Texas Statewide Sexual Assault Prevalence Study" compiled by the University of Texas at Austin found that physical, mental and emotional problems that limit activities are nearly twice as prevalent among sexual assault victims (41.3

The 10-step sugar detox plan

For adults who crave candy and ice cream almost as much as their children, the bad news on sugar continues to pour in.

Earlier this year, research into sugar's deleterious effects showed a connection to cancer, heart disease and diabetes. More recently, the American Dental Association reminded parents just how bad sugar is for their children's teeth.

"We think we're so advanced in 2016, yet when it comes to health and a nutritious diet, many of us have a long way to go," says nutritionist and juicing pioneer Cherie Calbom, who is known as "The Juice Lady." The good news for parents is they can ferret out the sugar-laden products that may be hidden in their and their children's diets, and dedicate themselves to a healthy, sugar-free lifestyle, says Calbom, author of "The Juice Lady's Sugar Knockout." She offers her Sugar Addiction Quiz at www.juiceladycherie.com/Juice/the-sugarknockout.

Below is Calbom's solution: a 10-step detox plan that parents can work on with their children to eliminate sugar in both their diets.

1. Avoid all sugar. If you can do it for 30 days, you can change your lifestyle. During this time, avoid even healthy sweeteners like honey, and substitutes, which overwhelm the taste buds.

2. Cut caffeine intake. There are multiple benefits to cutting back on your caffeine, including the temptation to use sugary creamers and accompanying sweets along with actually causing sugar cravings.

3. Skip foods that turn to sugar easily. This includes wheat and other grains, alcohol and starchy foods like white potatoes.

4. Enjoy healthy smoothies. Healthy smoothies that include dark leafy greens like kale or chard make you percent) than among nonvictims (26.5 percent). Sexual assault victims are almost twice as likely as nonvictims to suffer from asthma (20.9 percent versus 12.5 percent), frequent headaches (21 percent versus 11 percent), irritable bowel syndrome (9 percent versus 4.2 percent), and chronic pain (20.3 percent versus 9.9 percent). The study stated the financial impact to the Lone Star State of sexual assault is conservatively estimated at $8 billion annually.

Pediatricians at Parkland also are urging awareness of the importance of vaccination to protect all children, including those who are victims of sexual assault, from the health risks of human papilloma virus (HPV).

Donna Persaud, a Parkland pediatrician, stated, "More than 80 percent of the population will be infected at least once in their lifetime with HPV, the most common sexually transmitted infection (STI). In most cases, HPV goes away on its own and doesn't lead to health problems, but it can cause cervical and other cancers that are serious health risks."

In February, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) updated the HPV vaccination schedule, recommending that 9and 10-year olds receive the HPV vaccine if they have a history of sexual abuse. Previously, the CDC recommended that the vaccine be administered to boys and girls between the ages of 11 to 14.

"HPV vaccines offer the best protection to girls and boys who receive all three vaccine doses," Dr. Persaud said. "It is most effective when administered to preteens to allow time for their bodies to develop an immune response before they are exposed to cancer ost risks."

"Educating the community about the prevalence of sexual assault is one way to help prevent it," Reilly said. "We want individuals, families and the community to know about the resources available to them. The theme of this year's campaign is 'Prevention is possible.' Promoting safe behaviors, healthy relationships and equitable policies will help keep everyone, including children, safer."

If you or a loved one is in an abusive situation and needs immediate assistance, call the Parkland Rape Crisis Center 24-hour hotline at 214.590.0430. Oak Cliff Chamber is celebrating 96 years at April 30 gala

The Oak Cliff Chamber of Commerce will host its 2016 Gala & Auction: Soaring to New Heights, April 30, from 6 - 10 p.m. at the Hilton Anatole. Chris Arnold, Game Night Emcee for the Dallas Mavericks, will be the Master of Ceremonies for the occasion.

The Oak Cliff Chamber's 2016 Gala & Auction: Soaring to New Heights, is the chamber's largest fundraiser of the year and the biggest event in the southern sector of Dallas. Attended by over 500 of the region's most elite and friendly people, this black tie event will feature a star-studded evening packed with both a live auction and a silent auction, dinner, music and entertainment, games and prizes. This year will also include a car raffle.

Created in 1920, the Oak Cliff Chamber of Commerce is one of the oldest and most active chambers in the Dallas area. It does not receive grants or funding from any entities; therefore, it depends upon its fundraising activities throughout the year to not only accomplish its goals of providing programs and services that stimulate sustainable growth and development in the Oak Cliff area, but to also keep the Chamber's operations running smoothly.

The Chamber depends heavily upon its annual Gala & Auction event, as it is the biggest fundraiser of the vear.

Reliant customers raises more than $450,000 for EarthShare of Texas

As Earth Day approaches, Reliant is celebrating the results of the Reliant EcoShare program that has raised more than $450,000 for Earth-Share of Texas to support over 35 of the most respected environmental and conservation organizations in the state, including The Nature Conservancy of Texas, Galveston Bay Foundation and Texas Parks and Wildlife Foundation. Also, kicking off on Earth Day, April 22, and lasting through June 3, the public is invited to share their Lone Star point-of-view on social media by using the hashtags #FromWhereIStand and #ReliantOneOfAKind. For every photo showcasing the state's natural beauty, Reliant will donate $5 toward EarthShare of Texas, up to $5,000.

Over the past four years, thousands of Reliant customers have been a part of EcoShare, a simple and affordable program that helps Texans give back to the many organizations that comprise EarthShare of Texas while supporting the reduction of their own carbon footprint. Through the program, customers have supported the purchase of nearly 92,500 metric tons of carbon offsets, which represents a verifiable reduction and offset of greenhouse gases, such as carbon dioxide generated as a result of using electricity or driving a car. Reliant's customers' support of carbon offset purchases is equivalent to taking almost 18,000 cars off the road for a year.

"Reliant's EcoShare program has made a lasting difference for the National Wildlife Federation," said Meg Haenn, deputy director, South Central Regional Center at National Wildlife Federation. "Each dimension of our mission has been directly touched by donations from Reliant customers - from conserving and restoring our region's environment to facilitating the relationships between people and their backyard wildlife. Donations from Reliant are helping us protect and restore declining monarch butterfly populations in Texas through our school and community based programs. We appreciate Reliant making it easy for customers to participate in the program and look forward to our continued involvement with the program."

College heroes visit Herfurth Elementary

Students at Garland ISD's Herfurth Elementary School recently received a visit from some heroes. But not the kind that wear capes. The campus partnered with Junior Achievement (JA) of Dallas to bring in college crusaders armed with life skills.

"JA's College Heroes program teaches students about jobs, city operations, finances, family roles, entrepreneurship and more," said Principal Jessica Hicks. "Tailored to each grade level and offered in both English and Spanish, it is a memorable way for students to learn these skills needed for the future."

Herfurth's superhero subs spent the entire day with their classes, eating lunch, playing at recess and, of course, imparting important information.

"What does it take to start a business?" asked one men-

"An idea. A building," answered Herfurth students.

"What about quality employees?" the mentor replied. Junior Achievement hopes to visit more Garland ISD campuses. For more information, visit the organization's website.

TWC supports Career Pathway expansion

AUSTIN - In less than a single college semester, Texas adults can move from lacking basic employment skills to being on track for an in-demand occupation by participating in career pathway training programs. These programs will soon expand as a result of a $500,000 Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) community college mentoring grant.

Supporting the state's Accelerate TEXAS initiative, TWC is funding a career pathway expansion project through a grant to a consortium of colleges. The expansion project will support the development, expansion and success of Adult Education and Literacy (AEL) programs to provide integrated education and training to meet students' workforce readiness needs. Houston Community College (HCC) will lead the mentoring college consortium consisting of Alamo Colleges, Amarillo College, South Texas College

For the fourth consecutive year, Las Colinas Country Club will host some of the best female golfers in the world when the Volunteers of America Texas Shootout comes to Irving April 26 through May 1.

Volunteers of America, a national nonprofit organization, also recently announced it has extended its role as title sponsor for the next three years.

The tournament's defending champion and 2015 LPGA Player of the Year, Inbee Park, will compete in Irving against many of the biggest names on the LPGA, including Lydia Ko, Stacy Lewis and Michelle

Wie. The Tournament also includes the High School and College Shootout where the top high school and collegiate female golfers from across the country will vie for a chance to win a playing spot in the Official Tournament alongside their LPGA idols.

The High School and College Shootout was held March 16 at Las Colinas Country Club. Maddie Szeryk from Texas A&M and Cheyenne Knight from Alabama both shot a 73 and earned spots in the tournament. Karah Sanford and Kristen Gillman both shot a 72 in the High School Shootout to earn spots in the tournament.

Volunteers of America, one of the nation's largest national providers of housing and programs for homeless veterans and their families, serves more than 2 million of America's most vulnerable each year by helping those in need live healthy, safe and productive lives.

Collin College's Taylor Jackson named an All-American

Collin College's Taylor Jackson of Frisco has been named an All-American Honorable Mention by the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Jackson, a 5-6 sophomore guard, led the North Texas Junior College Athletic Conference (NTJ-CAC) with 16 points per game, shooting 41.2 percent from the field. Jackson went 49-63 from the stripe in conference and 91-121 overall, for free throw percentages of 77.8 percent and 75.2 percent respectively.

Jackson recorded 114 assists and 85 steals throughout the Lady Cougars' 32-game regular and post-seasons. Jackson was also named First Team All-Region and

Tavlor Jackson selected as an All-American for Basketball

NTJCAC Most Valuable Player.

"Taylor was a big reason why we won back to back conference championships," Lady Cougars Head Coach Jeff Allen said. "I'm very proud of how hard she has worked over the past two years."

McKINNEY MISD lowers tax rate

McKinney ISD, based on higher than previously estimated property value growth from the Collin County Central Appraisal District, combined with interest savings from completed Bond Refunding (Refinancing), will be looking to reduce the tax rate by 4.5 cents instead of the previously estimated 2 cents. In addition, McKinney

ISD will be reducing the maturity of any authorized 2016 Bond Program, 16-17 fiscal year bond sales from 25 years to 20 years, enhancing an already aggressive debt payoff schedule.

Garland native serving aboard Navy's USS Santa Fe submarine

PEARL HARBOR - A 2010 Berkner High School graduate and Garland, Texas native is serving in the U.S. Navy as part of a crew working aboard one of the world's most advanced nuclear-powered fast attack submarines, USS Santa Fe.

Petty Officer 2nd Class Nolan Killingsworth is a machinist's mate (nuclear) serving aboard the Pearl Harborbased submarine, one of 40 Los Angeles-class submarines making it the backbone of the submarine force.

A Navy machinist's mate is responsible for maintaining the mechanical side of the nuclear reactor propulsion plant.

"My job is interesting, but even more interesting is to be able to see different cultures and places that I would probably never get to see otherwise," said Killingsworth.

With a crew of 130, this submarine is 360 feet long and weighs approximately 6,900 tons. A nuclear-powered propulsion system helps push the submarine through the water at more than 25 mph.

Attack submarines are designed to hunt down and destroy enemy submarines and surface ships; strike targets ashore with cruise missiles; carry and deliver Navy SEALs; carry out intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance missions; and engage in mine warfare. Their primary tactical advantage is stealth, operating undetected under the sea for long periods of time.

"Submarine sailors never cease to amaze me with their ability to complete complex missions in the world's most challenging environments," said Rear Adm. Fritz Roegge, Commander, Submarine Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet. "Continued U.S. undersea superiority is not possible without their dedication, expertise and professionalism."

According to Navy officials, because of the demanding environment aboard submarines, personnel are accepted only after rigorous testing and observation. Submariners are some of the most highly trained and skilled people in the Navy. The training is highly technical and each crew has to be able to operate, maintain, and repair every system or piece of equipment on board. Regardless of their specialty, everyone also has to learn how everything on the ship works and how to respond in emergencies to become "qualified in submarines" and earn the right to wear the coveted gold or silver dolphins on their uniform.

"Our sub has a really good reputation for doing things the right way and doing things on time," said Killingsworth. "It's a source of pride for all of us." Challenging submarine living conditions actually build strong fellowship among the elite crew, Navy officials explained. The crews are highly motivated, and quickly adapt to changing conditions. It is a busy life of specialized work, watches, and drills.

"Serving in the Navy to me is all about doing what I can to protect people back at home, so they can enjoy their life with a sense of security," Killingsworth added.

Criminal is a good action story, but misses the emotional mark

By Ruth Ferguson NDG Editor

So now we know what Ryan Reynolds will likely look when he is hits his senior years: a grizzled Kevin Costner. The two co-star in a very high octane, cover your eyes sometimes Criminal. We all love a good top government secret action flick and on the action Criminal delivers in spades. It is the attempt at emotion this is off the mark. Ariel Vromen, Israel born direc-

Kevin Costner looks in the memory but sees Ryan Reynolds in Criminal.

with his feminine side. Reynolds plays Bill Pope, tor, clearly was not in touch a CIA agent living in London who is handling a hacker who could shut down the U.S. military with the click of a button. But unfortunately (don't tell his number one fan, Sasha Obama) he gets killed on the job. His crazy boss played well by Gary Oldman, reaches out to grumpy mad scientist Dr. Franks (Tommy Lee Jones) who has spent 18 years figuring out how to take someone else's memories and implant them in the mind of another person. And guess who gets to be the first human trial. Yes, a criminal that is so crazy (Costner's Jericho) he feels no more remorse about killing a man than you would killing a fly.

The action in this flick is edge of your seat good, but the attempt at emotion will make you scream.

The "let's make Frankenstein a gentle monster" thread is fine as Jericho struggles to deal with the fact he is developing "feelings." What was astonishingly distracting was the decisions of Pope's wife, played by Gal Gadot. A man ties you up and goes to your daughter's bedroom and somewhere along the line you decide to believe his fantastic story and the three of you are making waffles together? Um, interesting choices for a mother.

If Criminal simply stuck with the action this would be a much stronger movie. Costner and Oldman deliver serviceable performances. Enjoy the drama, but if you buy the attempt at feelings, you probably need your head examined.

CBC applauds placement of Harriet T bman o

WASHINGTON, D.C. -Congressional Black Caucus Chairman G. K. Butterfield (NC-01) and Rep. Maxine Waters (CA-43), Ranking Member of the House Financial Services Committee made the following statement after Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew announced plans to replace President Andrew Jackson with Harriet Tubman on the $20 bill:

"It brings me great joy to learn that the United States will honor abolitionist Harriet Tubman by placing her image on the $20 bill," said Chairman Butterfield. "An African American woman, former slave, freedom fighter, and leader for women's rights, Ms. Tubman was a true visionary who is most deserving of this recognition. Ms. Tubman was dedicated to improving the lives of all Americans until her death in 1913. Her legacy continues to impact all Americans to this day and will live on for generations to come.

"Furthermore, the $5 and $10 bills will also feature new historic images that remind us of the activists that have made America a more perfect union," said Chairman Butterfield. "These designs will represent a more inclusive America by finally representing women, many of whom have been absent in important histor-

"I applaud the Treasury Department's decision to feature Harriet Tubman on the $20 bill, women's suffrage leaders including Sojourner Truth on the $10 bill, and civil rights leaders including Martin Luther King Jr. and Marian Anderson on the $5 bill," said Rep. Maxine Waters.

"These depictions on our nation's currency are long overdue and will show the world the remarkable progress our country has made on the road to equality. The Secretary's decision recognizes the important contri-

T-Mobile Named One of 2016 World's Most Ethical Companies

T-Mobile has – once again – been recognized as a global leader in defining and advancing the standards of ethical business practices as a 2016 World's Most Ethical Company® by the Ethisphere Institute. This marks eight consecutive years T-Mobile has been the only US wireless provider to receive this award.

"We are dramatically changing an industry and our employees make sure every day that we're doing it the right way," said John Legere, president and CEO of T-Mobile. "I'm not surprised — but very proud that T-Mobile is the only US wireless provider on the list."

As America's Un-carrier, T-Mobile has shaken up the wireless industry, freeing customers from onerous contracts, packing in more services like free music and video streaming, and unleashing more ways to uti-

In addition to gaining recognition for her public service, Griffin holds or previously held committee leadership positions and memberships for several boards and organizations throughout the area. They include: Advisory Council Chairperson of Garland Corps of Salvation Army; Chairperson of the Garland Steering Committee; and Life Member of PTA Texas Caucus of Black School Board Members.

Griffin discussed the satisfaction she derives from serving as Chairperson of the Garland Corps of Salvation Army. It is their commitment to helping the community during times of hardship, such as the help they provided after the devastating tornado in December of last year.

"It gives me another opportunity to give back to the community and try to provide and give to people when they have unfortunately fallen on difficult times," Griffin shared.

She helped to spearhead policies effecting change within the District such as the creation of the Board Operating Procedure Booklet, which was designed to serve as a resource in helping guide administration/staff on how to conduct school business as well as serve as a resource to provide trustees' overall procedures and processes. Griffin also played an integral role in implementing an Exchange Program that sent students and teachers to Taiwan.

"I am the Trustee that leads at the highest number of continuing Ed hours, so with that I prepare myself to serve by attending seminars, conventions, and conferences", she stated when asked about her qualifications.

of her life to public and community service, Griffin has also held positions within the corporate sector. Her career, often as one of the first African American women in leadership roles included, working in senior management within the Information Technology division of Allianz of America, an insurance company.

"I stay pretty current on technology and that was one of the reasons I got on the Board to give my information technology expertise to the District and I am pleased to look back on all the accomplishments that we have made in technology in the District; not just because of my leadership, but because of my understanding of technology and the complexities of systems and programs," she shared, pointing out how her professional background has helped serve the District well in the area of technology improvements.

Griffin continues to pursue a life in public office because she wants to continue her motto of service to help implement change that is "Always Benefiting Children."

"I want to stay on the Board to see the blended classrooms develop where we have desktops, laptops, iPads and then we have software that's installed on our network in the District. And the greatest thing is to see how those things all blend together to ultimately increase student performance."

"Every day I walk by faith and it is the direction that I look for and the greatest thing my faith does for me in this elected position is to have no respect of person, but to treat all of our children, all of our community, all of our citizens the same-my faith allows me to cially God's children." After receiving a designation as a Master Trustee through the successful completion of the Texas Association of School Board Members Leadership Program, Griffin believes it's important that she keeps herself educated in order to understand the needs and issues affecting her District.

"I want to see the continuous expansion of Pre-K and early childhood programs."

Other issues she is campaigning for includes:

College and career readiness programs

Successful digital upgrades of classrooms

Increased high school

PCSI Celebrates 20 Years of Employing People with Disabilities

Professional Contract Services, Inc. (PCSI) turned 20 on April 5. Founded in 1996, PCSI's first contract employed nine landscaping and janitorial workers in west Texas. Today, the Austin-based company employs over 1,400 people on 40 contracts in ten states, delivering a dozen different services and generating $120 million annually.

PCSI is a nonprofit operating under AbilityOne, a government program that requires 75 percent of PCSI's workforce be people with significant disabilities. This translates into 1,000 good jobs at PCSI for workers who have disabilities.

PCSI is an experienced provider of workplace accommodations, including assistive technologies, deaf interpretive services, ergonomic adjustments, and personalized learning helps. Accommodations allow people with disabilities to participate in the work force, contribute to the economy, and achieve financial independence.

PCSI workers with disabilities meet all contract requirements and performance standards. Its teams earn consistently high customer ratings and evaluations. The company's Healthcare Environmental Services group at Fort Carson, Colorado was recognized twice among "The Top Five" nationally. PCSI's Fleet Management team at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma was recognized three times among

"The Best 100 Fleets in North America."

Recent PCSI accomplishments include: an exclusive endorsement from the Texas Hospital Association; establishing PCSI Texas, LLC as a subsidiary to grow jobs for people with disabilities in the private sector; and funding a Community Employment Program for transitioning young adults in special education from school to work.

According to PCSI's President and CEO, Carroll Schubert, "For 20, years we have met and exceeded our customers' expectations while staying true to our mission: to employ people with every type of disability. That's something to celebrate!"

and the Tarrant County College District.

Accelerate TEXAS is the state's initiative to help adult students acquire basic skills and progress on a pathway toward a high-demand occupation.

As mentors, the college consortium members will assist at least 10 other community colleges or adult education providers throughout the state in establishing career pathway programs, similar to the successful models operated by HCC and the other members of the consortium. These programs have proven successful because they concurrently enroll learners in contextualized basic education courses, such as reading and math at the same time they are learning high demand skills such as welding. Contextualized content is more relevant and meaningful to students and results in quicker learning. Using this method, students are often able to complete training programs in one semester or less which gets them into a new career more quickly and at a lower cost.

in addressing the issue of equal pay and fair treatment of women in the workplace. His first piece of legislation, the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act, gave women a longer time to sue for workplace discrimination.

He has also created a National Equal Pay Task Force and, through executive order, prohibited federal contractors from discriminating against workers who discuss their pay. In the non-federal workplace, employees can be disciplined, or even fired, if they discuss their pay. Indeed, the reason there are such gaping pay gaps is because there is so little transparency about pay.

From legislation he has supported, and discretionary acts he has taken, President Obama would likely do more to close the gender pay gap were there a more cooperative Congress. Clearly, pay equity is not a priority for this Congress.

President Obama has been an aggressively profamily President. From his support of an increased minimum wage, to his advocacy for paid sick leave (including an executive order for federal contractors), to his support for better overtime regulations, the President has strongly supported workplace fairness.

It takes nothing from his strong commitment to women, though, to acknowledge that African American women earn less, and that Equal Pay Day comes much later for them (and for Latina women, who would have to work until November 1 to earn the same amount a man earned last year) than it does for other women.

Surrounded by three intelligent and beautiful African American women – Michelle, Sasha and Malia – it would be impossible for our President to be unaware of the challenges that African American women face. While I am aware that this President prefers not to deal with race matters, in this last year of his Presidency, he ought to consider "These efficient career pathway models will equip individuals with the soft skills, literacy and technical skills needed to efficiently secure a job," said TWC Chairman Andres Alcantar. "Congratulations to the members of the consortium for their commitment to demonstrating the effective scaling of these highly effective models."

The career pathway program expansion supports the mission of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board's 60x30TX initiative to equip 60 percent of Texans ages 25-34 with a cerdoing so. There are few consequences for this action.

President Obama does not mind using Black women as a throwaway line in a speech. At his University of Chicago Law School conversation, he defended his nomination of Merrick Garland to the Supreme Court.

He rather vapidly said that some people expected him to pick a "Black lesbian from Skokie," a comment I found offensive and condescending. If Black women can be fodder for a silly offthe-cuff remark, surely we ought to get enough serious policy consideration for our pay equity issues to be addressed.

"And he sent a man before them - Joseph, sold as a slave." - Psalm 105:17

God is doing a unique work around the world today. He is rising up Josephs throughout the world. Some are still in the "pit" stage of their pilgrimage, while others are heading toward fruitfulness.

What does it take for a person to become a true Joseph? It takes years of preparation and testing to be, "A True Joseph." It takes what God is allowed to use. Read the Story of Joseph in Genesis, Chapters 38 through 46.

A true Joseph is one who is a provider both spiritually and materially for those in the Body of Christ. It is a person who understands that he is simply a manager of all that God has entrusted to him.

It is a person who has humility and a broken and contrite heart before God. But, how does God prepare modern-day Josephs?

Modern-day Josephs are prepared through their own trials. It is often through the adversities of life, visions, relationships and broken dreams.

These are the things that try people the most. These are the things God uses to allow the Josephs of our day to be proven by the Word of the Lord. Once proven, God brings them out of their prisons and uses them mightily for His purposes.

Joseph went through his own trials - not because of any failure, but because of an incredible calling: to save and provide for an entire nation

God had to prepare this man with 13 years of broken dreams and humble circumstances in order to break every ounce of pride and self-will.

God could not afford to

The story of Joseph came to mind when my granddaughter Tyanna finally decided, after many urgings from her mom Sheila and others, to seriously consider taking a week of her summer to travel to Honduras on a church mission.

When Tyanna was a baby it was prophesized that she would do a great work for God. When she was in pri-

And, at Hebron High School she is perfecting her Spanish and taking other courses to prepare her for college and beyond.

This summer God is given Tyanna the privilege, honor and opportunity of joining her church, Freedom Life Church in Carrollton, Lead Pastor Kendall Bridges, the mission's team trip to Honduras in the Kid's Ark International program.

It is my belief that Tyanna is in the path that God is preparing for her to do a work for Him in the future.

Tyanna's first trial, on Monday, April 11th, she was broadsided on the driver's, side, she said that a big man snatched opened the door that was stuck and three ladies hugged her when she got out of the car and told her that every will be okay.

There was a policeman nearby who saw the accident; when Tyanna completed her talk with him she looked around to thank the man and three ladies and couldn't find them. God pro-

Anything's worth a try. Never done it before? Then give it a whirl, you have nothing to lose. You might actually like it. You might grow to love it. And then again – as in the new book "We Love You, Charlie Freeman" by Kaitlyn Greenidge, the experiment might go horribly awry.

The shiny new car just didn't seem right.

Nothing did, really. Leaving their home, moving to another state, having to make new friends, Charlotte Freeman hated it all. And this experiment her parents had gotten them into, well, no.

Her mother, Laurel, sure was excited about it, though. Ever since she was young, Laurel had been fascinated with sign language, and she taught both her daughters to sign as soon as they were old enough to understand the motions. But a chimpanzee? A chimp the Freemans would raise as a child, while they taught it sign language?

Charlotte couldn't ever imagine spending the rest of her teenage years pretending that a chimpanzee was that accident.

When Tyanna called her mom, Shelia, to tell her about the accident, she told her that approximately 30 minutes prior to the accident that God had given her the thought to pray for her. Tyanna didn't get a scratch and her car could be driven. This is how my awesome God works!

Perhaps, Tyanna will meet other youth from different parts of the world that has a Joseph calling on their lives as well. These youths will probably have humility of heart and a spirit unlike any others in our country. Each one will have his/her own Joseph story. Maybe it will change Tyanna's life and her view of the world.

She might see firsthand a phenomenon that is going on throughout the world. I believe that God is rising up these youthful servants to prepare for a worldwide global harvest of souls by the awesome demonstration of God's power working today and in the future. In preparation for this mission trip Tyanna has setup a Go-Fund-Me page on Facebook to help. Please read her information and consider supporting her trip. Remember, it is only what you do for God's work that will last throughout eternity.

Tyanna is willing to allow God to use her gifts and talents that He has so graciously given her for His eternal Kingdom.

For sure, "We Love You, Charlie Freeman." is sharp as an axe.

A ut h or K a it l y n Greenidge doesn't just touch upon the issue of race, she tackles it and knocks it to the ground. This, while we squirm over what we see happening to the people in the story, and what we think is coming.

Yep, Greenidge is good at making readers uneasy.

That dis-ease, however, fully extends to the character, Nymphadora, who's introduced with her Star of the Morning lineage in a way that made me wonder if this was a time-travel novel. It's not – but it took me a good long while to understand so.

Knowing that will make less of a struggle in reading this novel, and it'll help you to love it as much as I did. For a book with edginess, unrest, and just enough weirdness, "We Love You, Charlie Freeman" is worth a try.
